In Retrospect

Communication has been a key element in life throughout the history of mankind. Newer, faster means of communication have always been at the forefront of experimentation and development. Just as books, phone conversations, music, and drama attempt to convey emotions and ideas to others, a yearbook endeavors to imprint the memories and history of a school year. The four years we spend at Lincoln-Sudbury are inscribed in this book, so that each of us can look back fifty years from now and remember a time gone by.

As the new millennium forces us to ponder the history of all aspects of human life, one is easily amazed by the progress of the past thousand years. Even more astonishing than the sheer growth of knowledge, science, and ingenuity, is the acceleration that has occurred most recently. The important inventions of the telephone, car, and radio have made worldwide communication possible. Thanks to cutting-edge technology, DYAD is capable of producing an award-winning yearbook, one far more advanced than that of a decade before.

The historical Grist Mill in Sudbury is a breathtaking tourist attraction resides in Lincoln's National Historical Park, which among other things, preserves the site where Paul Revere was captured

Lincoln and Sudbury: Preserving the Past

The Wayside Inn, just down the road from the Grist Mill, has housed important historical figures such as George Washington

The world around us is constantly changing. Development is welcomed, and often celebrated. The predicted breakthroughs in medicine, technology, business, and entertainment are overwhelming. However, no one can accurately foresee the exact direction of new inventions or techniques. While our lives may be changed slightly by the advance of the information superhighway, new cures for diseases and ideas for the future also indicate vast changes in the general way of human life. Headway in biomedical technology may one day drastically increase life spans and change man's entire outlook on life.

However, the world's recent impressive progress can lead to worrisome predictions for the next thousand years. The period preceeding the turn of the millennium has been characterized by fears and apocalyptic predictions regarding the events of January 1, 2000. Y2K-related computer bugs have threatened to cause widespread mainframe havoc. Theologians read passages from Revelation, "... and when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall become loosed out of his prison ..." Very rapidly, people across the globe are becoming uncomfortable at the thought of a new year, and the next thousand years ahead. Some futurists have even questioned the continuing existence of man in another thousand years.

At the start of this new millennium, we feel obligated to look to the past, analyze the present, and question the future. This yearbook is meant to help us do so. Look through each section and give thought to every decade of the most progressive century in human history. Ponder the past year, and analyze your life to this point. Finally, refine your dreams for tomorrow, for they will soon shape the world in which we live.

It's summer! Students flood out of the doors of L-S to their buses and cars. Some students pause momentarily to say a few quick good-byes to their friends, or clean out their lockers. Students look forward to a summer of fun beside the pool, and homework-free, commitment-free relaxation. Well ... almost. For months, parents have been shouting, "Get a job!" For many students, summer is a time to get a job at a camp, or a local service or retail establishments.

While some L-S students work, many others travel around the world on family vacations. Others take courses at local universities to get a head start on their college education.

The 90's Student At Work...

The modern-day student leads a busy life. During the school year students are not only obligated to attend school five out of the seven days in a week, but many also choose to participate in sports, clubs, and/or music. Students are besieged from every side by homework, tests, and projects – and all of these things must be dealt with on their own time. Students work hard to secure enough free time for sleep and relaxation. Take a glance at Lincoln-Sudbury and see the hard work that students and teachers put into their education.

...And At Play

Of course, everyone eventually needs to find time to cut loose. During the school day, leisure activities can range from a fun game of ultimate frisbee to spending the lunch block in the Forum office discussing the finer points of Western Civilization. Juniors and seniors can also break up a hectic day by grabbing a quick bite to eat at a local restaurant during a free block. The fine line between school and fun activities is blurred as students enjoy sports, music, and participate in clubs. Before returning to their studies, students often relieve the stresses of the week by attending parties, concerts, or sports games. Whether in the halls of L-S, or in their homes in Sudbury and Lincoln, students always find interesting ways to amuse themselves.

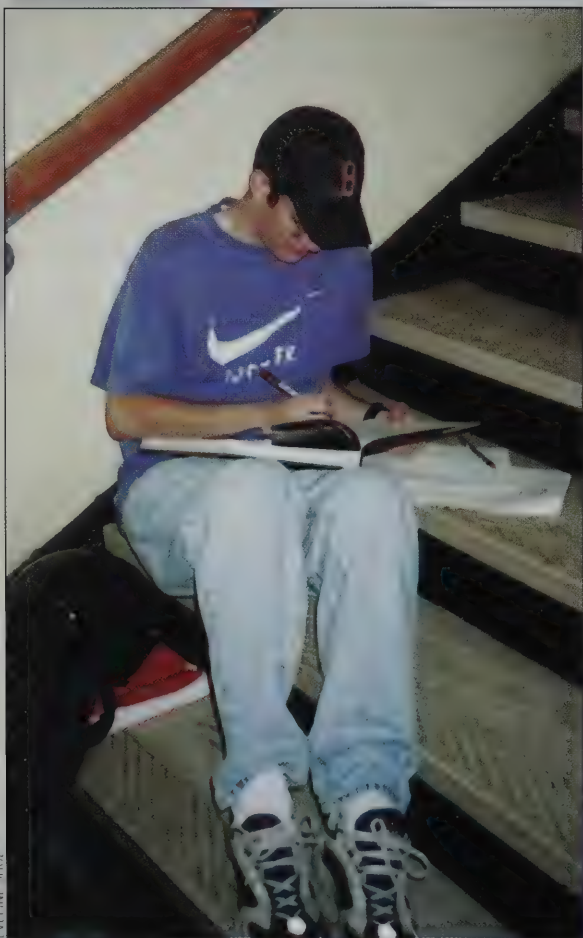

Who knows what Aaron New (00) is doing? He seems to be having fun, though!

there were those hottie senior guys there were shudders and giggles when they passed by always making sure we didn't look them in the eyes.

And for the young frosh guys who, for many, had yet to finish their growth spurts walked by those vivacious upperclass women and in return, received grave glances without a care

We learned the meaning of real liberty during school hours (or so we thought) only to realize by the end of the year, our freedom only consisted of the library, the caf and the seldom excursions which always brought good cheer.

However, by the end of our first year at L-S and the 2nd to last of entrapment behind the yellow line we learned how to defy "Dave"
and how to get out of a tardy (or maybe a gym class) without even a whine.

The alarm clock blared in your tender ear the morning that you began your sophomore year. It was an uneasy start, but by the time your newly clothed body passed through the main entrance you had come to an amazing realization. Somewhere in this school there was a clueless freshman, fresh from the hallowed halls of middle school, who was more confused than you. You mastered the lingo, transportation was altered, partial priority was yours, and you were no longer a frosh. The changes were more than noticeable and much appreciated. Your mailbox was about a foot closer to the house office door. As the first weeks passed you were enjoying yourself, no longer the "kid" you were a soph-o-more.

Now being a sophomore wasn't exactly all fun and games, you soon learned. You didn't get to snooze-some-more, the prospects for making junior-varsity sports were a bit unsteady, and the work, ahhh ... the work. Classes with AP distinctions appeared in your schedule's squares. No more earth sciences for you, the soph, your life was filled with pigs, algae, and a book bearing stampeding elephants. There was so much to do, so little time.

There really isn't enough time; only two more years of high school. Your years at L-S were numbered, and you finally began to realize it. Actually talking to your counselor about your future, making good impressions - it was all so hard to grasp. You were on top of the world your first days of a double-digit grade, but as the days went by so fast reality set in. Juggling fun and work wasn't so easy anymore. But you were a mighty sophomore and you could handle it.

Iraqi Conflict

The conflict between the United States and Iraq continues at a stalemate; Saddam Hussein continues to reject the United States' pressure and refuses to permit United Nations weapons inspectors to search his stores of weapons. There has been no military action to combat this disobedience, or to pressure Iraq into compliance yet.

Many believe that Saddam Hussein possesses massive quantities of deadly chemical weapons, including several lethal types of nerve gas. The United Nations has sent teams of inspectors into Iraq to document these weapons. However, Hussein continually prevents these teams from entering; for this reason, many claim that Iraq is winning this non-military confrontation.

In addition to physically resisting inspectors, Hussein has employed a number of deceiving tactics. He constantly moves his chemical weapons between many presidential palaces, then refuses to allow inspectors into his "private residences." When ordered to turn over weapons documents, Iraq is rumored to have destroyed them.

Even though Iraq is not a formidable military power, it is suspected to have an amazing arsenal of deadly weapons. If Iraq does not agree to the terms of the United Nations and the rest of the world, military action may be a result of this conflict.

The Pope Visits Cuba

Who would have thought that Pope John Paul II would travel to Fidel Castro's inhumane society, Cuba? Almost nobody. Nonetheless, the pope made this historic journey, sparking what Dalia Acosta of the Brecha has called a "revolution within the revolution."

The economic situation in Cuba is anything but desirable. Residents of Cuba have been plagued by years of economic crisis and uncertainty; Cubans only wish that they could have the opportunity to earn a substantial salary. They desperately desire change.

Pope John Paul II has called for change as well. He spoke along the lines of typical Roman Catholic tenets, calling for a stop to abortion and divorce as well as for an increase in the sacredness of marriage. Reaching farther into the economic and political realm, the pope outwardly condemned the United States embargo on Cuba. He also asked Cuba's government to stop pressuring its citizens to atheism and promote freedom of expression instead.

It is possible that the long-range effects of this visit will be substantial. There has already been progress; within a month of the visit, Castro has released thirty-four political prisoners and has promised to release two hundred more.

Hong Kong Shifts Hands

After years of petitioning and attempted deals, China has finally regained sovereignty over the province, Hong Kong. On July 1, the Joint Declaration between Great Britain and the People's Republic of China was signed which made this agreement final. In fact, this sovereignty conflict dates back 143 years when Britain won control of Hong Kong in the first Opium War. But the agreement has been met with a great deal of controversy.

Many wonder how Hong Kong's democracy will survive under the repressive communist government in China. China has claimed that Hong Kong and China will be "one country, two systems;" the Joint Declaration was contingent upon the continuation of democracy in Hong Kong. In response to this requirement, Hong Kong's social and economic systems, and rights and freedoms (including those of speech, of the press, of assembly, of association, and of religious belief) will remain unchanged.

But the validity of these claims is questionable. Hong Kong's stock market and business community has continued to prosper, but this may not be a sign that China respects Hong Kong; after all, it is in China's best interest to keep the economy of Hong Kong flourishing. Also, Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichan said that Hong Kong's media can continue to criticize, as long as they do not formulate any personal attacks. This has been even more restrictive than it sounds; Hong Kong newspapers are now filled with articles that flatter the transition of sovereignty and which overly praises China's chief executive Tung, even though many disapprove of Hong Kong's new niche in the world.

The long-range success or failure of this transfer remains to be seen.

•Arthur Andersen

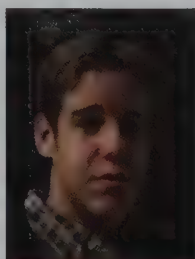

A massive celebration followed the reversion of Hong Kong's sovereignty to China after 143 years of British rule. Banners like "Build a democratic China" were carried around the city.

Death of a Princess

Few individuals have had a more profound affect on the world in the last fifty years than Diana, Princess of Wales. While her beauty and natural charm attracted immediate attention, her warmth and sincerity touched the world. Her charitable work included helping homeless and deprived children, advocating compassion for AIDS patients and drug abuse victims and well-known campaigns against the use of land mines. Diana redefined the concept of a princess from regal remoteness to one in touch with the human condition. Her death in 1997 was tragic. London shut down to mourn her death and more than one million people lined the streets to watch the funeral procession, while a further 2.5 billion people worldwide watched on television.

This worldwide reaction was more than the unfortunate death of a kindhearted member of the royal family, however. Through constant publicity after her marriage to Prince Charles, the world got to know her personally. Their relationship was analyzed frequently even after it ended in 1996. After the divorce her new relationships were also under close scrutiny. Reporters played on the conflict between the Princess and the rest of the royal family. Stories of depression, stress, and bulimia have also enjoyed wide circulation. The media was able to capitalize on the world's undying interest and the spectacle of her reacted in the same way to the paparazzi as many of her friends and family did. Diana was, in fact, a close friend of Richard Kay, a Daily Mail reporter. He was one of the first people called on the night of her death. She was also on good terms with the editors of other major British tabloids and it is unclear who initiated the frequent contact between them. Nevertheless, her family and friends condemned the press as the cause of both Princess Diana's personal problems and eventual death.

Thousands of mourners flocked the streets of London and surrounding areas to mourn the death of Princess Diana. Guards occasionally removed the astounding amounts of flowers and pictures were piled at the gates of the British Consulate to clear the sidewalk and donated them to local hospitals.

Princess Diana's charitable influence on the world is unquestionable. Many also enjoyed the weekly updates on her latest romance on the beaches of a remote island. The uneasy question remains: at what price did the world benefit from the story of the People's Princess.

life became disturbingly similar to a soap opera. Her sudden death in the middle of the night in a Parisian underpass continued this similarity. It always seemed like the heroine might just as suddenly be found alive, allowing the show to continue. As time went by and the reality of her death was established, attention turned to the possible causes. In an odd twist of fate, it seemed a possible that the very paparazzi that had helped turn her life into such a display had ended it.

Diana's death raised all kinds of questions about the treatment of celebrities by the tabloid press, especially the type of reporters and photographers that follow their targeted stories at high speeds on motorcycles. Yet, it is not clear that Diana herself

Golf - Tiger Woods Breaks Onto The Scene

An energetic 19 year-old kid named Tiger Woods reintroduced golf to the youth set when he won the 1997 Masters tournament with an astounding 18 under par performance. He spent the past few years winning all the amateur tournaments but turned professional in 1996. And a scant 6 months later he was the most recognized player in the sport. Golf, once seen as the sport for the rich and elderly, was revitalized by Woods' presence. All of a sudden, he was just as popular as Michael Jordan or Wayne Gretzky. Woods proved he was no one-hit wonder and he continued to win tournaments and play well on the course. He even went on to become the first PGA player to earn more than $2 million in a single year.

Football - Denver Upsets Green Bay

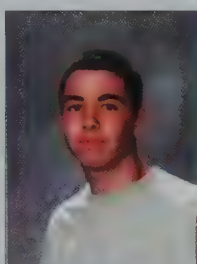

The aging veteran defeated the top passer in a square off the quarterbacks in Super Bowl XXXII. John Elway, the sentimental favorite led the Denver Broncos past the seemingly invincible Brett Favre and his Green Bay Packers. In what became one of the closest and exciting finals in recent memory, Elway threw an incredible game in his third outing in the "big dance". The Broncos had previously made it to the Super Bowl back in 1989, only to be humiliated 55-10 by San Francisco. Fans across the nation respected Elway's sportsmanship and athletic prowess as they cheered for him with more enthusiasm than in previous Super Bowls. The Denver win is also remarkable in that it ended the AFC's 13 year losing streak in the Super Bowl.

Baseball - The Series that was Purchased

The Florida Marlins, an expansion team that had been in existence for just five years, surprised the nation as it upset the Cleveland Indians and won the series in Game 7 behind an extra inning base hit by Edgar Renteria. Series MVP Livan Hernandez, a Cuban defector, led the team with his strong pitching throughout the playoffs. Marlin fever swept the nation. But a shadow fell over the series when a few months later the owner traded away the top players and cut the team's budget by millions. The 1997 team had a high payroll and spent the year in the red. Dismantling the team left the fans bitter over the World Series that was bought.

Hockey - Detroit Wins Again

For the second year in a row, the Detroit Red Wings dominated the playoffs and won the Stanley Cup. The Washington Capitals followed the example of the Philadelphia Flyers in 1997 and quickly bowed out to the Red Wings. Steve Yzerman led the Wings as series MVP by leading all players in points through the playoffs. Winning the Cup for a second year was an emotional victory for Detroit after losing defenseman Vladimir Konstantinov for the season. Just six days after their first victory in 1997, he was severely injured in a car crash and was forced to end his career. The entire season was dedicated to him.

MJ Calls it Quits

After an illustrious career spanning 13 seasons, 6 championships, and a plethora of awards, Michael Jordan retired while still at the top of his game. He was a legend in his time. From his buzzer beating shot in the NCAA Championship while at UNC to his last minute shot in the 1998 NBA Finals, Jordan always provided the heroics needed to win the big games. He dominated the game for nearly his whole career. And then after an 18 month premature retirement, he returned to the game and against all odds, he led his team back to their winning ways. He even managed to lead his team to victory in the 1997 NBA Finals despite severe dehydration. Jordan came to symbolize what man can accomplish if he works hard. Long after his years, he will be remembered as the greatest athlete of all time.

The NBA - One Last Time

Playing in his final NBA game, Michael Jordan triumphantly led the Chicago Bulls past the Utah Jazz in Game 6 in 1998. Jordan knocked down a game-winning jumper with 5.2 seconds left in the game. Karl Malone, who led the Jazz with 31 points, could do little more than look on as the Bulls deprived him of a championship ring for the second straight year. It was the Bulls third championship in a row and sixth in eight years. Considered to be the greatest team of all time, the Bulls players parted ways shortly after and left one of the greatest dynasties of our time.

Ice Cream Truck at LS

SUDBURY - A Medford radio station pulled a stunt on this lactose intolerant town by sending in an ice cream truck to Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School to give away ice cream last Thursday. The town has a bylaw banning ice cream trucks, stemming from the 1920s. Sudbury resident Bill Dorfman tried to repeal the ban during the annual town meeting but voters shot it down.

Station WXXS-FM, Kiss 108, learned about the ban and decided to test it by sending in an ice cream truck.

Rob Dulitsky, general manager of North Shore Ice Cream Corp. in Danvers, was happy to oblige.

"When I found out about the ban, I said, 'we definitely have to go down there,'" Dulitsky said.

He said the "Matty in the Morning" show wanted to see if it could get intern Randy Greenstein arrested in the ice cream truck. But the pranksters weren't in violation of the bylaw because they were giving the frozen treats away, not selling them.

The L-S Dance Troupe

Founded 1997

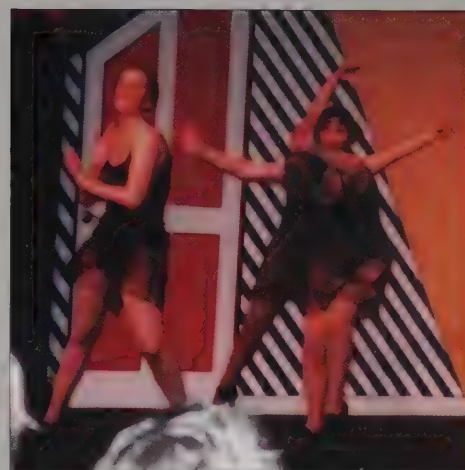

In the spring of 1997, Tovah Heller and Suelin Chen began their crusade to start a dance program at L-S. Their hard work yielded the formation of the Lincoln-Sudbury Dance Troupe at the beginning of the 1997-1998 school year. Suzanne Gainer, photography teacher and long-time dancer, graciously agreed to advise the new activity. Christine Dagostino, a student at Brandeis University, volunteered her time and expertise to choreograph dances ranging in style from ballet to funk.

During their first year, the L-S Dance Troupe was forced to be much like a nomadic tribe. They searched out any space they could find to dance. They resorted to the hallways when there was no where else to go. But their persistence and commitment paid off. Not only did they present two variety shows in Rogers Theatre, but they were also invited to the dance festival at Holliston High School and were asked to perform in the Rogers Theatre Benefit Show.

After the first year, the Dance Troupe kept developing, hoping to increase its presence in the school and also the number of dancers involved. Future goals included more varied types of dances and a dance floor available to the troupe at all times. Still, their most important goal remains to keep doing what they love, dancing.

AP History

Summer 1997 - May 18, 1998

What a class!

Advanced Placement United States History is a class distinct from the other courses at L-S. Working under the cracking whip of Ms. Grace, twenty-nine members of the class of 2000 endured extended classes, night and weekend classes, and full-lunch classes while churning out bimonthly papers on subjects which even Ms. Grace admitted were "paper topics from hell." Understandably, the stress from Lincoln-Sudbury's most gruelling class created a uniquely interesting environment.

What Was Your Favorite AP History Event?

"When Aaron and Mattes were putting ice cubes down the front of Arwen's dress"

"When Aaron pantsed Jon Mattes-Ritz in the New York hotel"

"When someone in the back row farted during a pause in a lecture."

"When Ben and Greg had a cream-cheese fight"

The Clinton Scandal

So when was the last time you had a discussion with your friends or family about President Clinton and the Lewinsky scandal? (Okay, let's rephrase that... when was the last time you talked about Clinton and Lewinsky and it did not involve a cigar joke?) For better or for worse, the president and his "troubles" seem to be the last thing on people's minds - whether you support the fellow or want him stuck upside down in a bucket of pirhanas. America simply does not care.

August 5, 1994 - Kenneth W. Starr takes over as special counsel from Robert B. Fiske. Either a dark day for democracy or the start of a righteous crusade against moral corruption, depending on whether you're a bleeding heart liberal or a gun-toting Bible thumper. Starr is originally mandated to investigate Whitewater. Do you remember Whitewater? We don't.

January, 1995 - Monica S. Lewinsky begins working at the White House as an intern. She soon becomes a "friend" of President Clinton. In the name of good taste we'll refrain from elaborating further ...

January 7, 1998 - Lewinsky files an affidavit in the Paula Jones sexual harassment case, in which she denies having a sexual relationship with Clinton. Does anyone remember what Jones looked like before she had surgery? Someone needs to explain to us why they thought Clinton harassed a Pinocchio clone.

January 17, 1998 - Starr expands his investigation to include the Lewinsky matter after Tripp utterly betrays her old friend. Also, Clinton gives his deposition for the Jones trial in which he denies having a sexual relationship with Lewinsky. Did you ever notice that the letters in "Linda Tripp" can be rearranged to spell "Nard lip tip"? We have.

This infamous picture has been plastered in nearly every major newspaper and magazine in America.

September 9, 1998 - Starr delivers 36 boxes to the United States House of Representatives, including two copies of the completely unintelligible report and a host of supporting evidence. This allows Americans to see Clinton's testimony for the first time, including the hilarious but disturbing part when he calls into question the meaning of the word "is". Didn't do too well on your SAT's, did you Bill?

December 18, 1998 - The House of Representatives votes to impeach William Jefferson Clinton on two counts: obstruction of justice and perjury. By doing so the House proves that it is the only group of people in America which actually wants to go forward with the fiasco of a Senate trial.

January 7, 1999 - Chief Justice William Rehnquist and the 100 Senators are sworn in for the trial. Rehnquist wears robes decorated in a Gilbert & Sullivan motif, which seems about right for such a Broadway-style trial. The American people refuse to watch in droves. Repeats of The Simpsons get higher ratings and provide far more intelligent and important subject matter.

February 4, 1999 - The Senate refuses to hear live witnesses during the trial. Hey, we wouldn't want to take the chance of having to look at Linda Tripp again, either.

February 12, 1999 - The United States Senate votes decisively to dismiss both articles of impeachment against President William Jefferson Clinton. The Republicans fail even to get a simple majority to vote for removal of the president. The country goes on with life, worn out by over a year of Clinton, Starr, and Lewinsky, and over $40 million dollars poorer as a result of the investigation.

We were going to try and close this with a joke, but frankly it's just too sad and pathetic to be funny. It's over, and that's that. Now let's all go back to watching the stock market, calling one another on our cell phones, and completely ignoring the federal government.

The Iraqi Conflict

The mini-war between the United States and Iraq has continued for months. The United States and certain other members of the United Nations have spent most of this period trying to pressure Saddam Hussein into allowing UN weapons inspectors to freely examine Iraq's weapon stores. In mid-December, the United States proceeded with "Operation Desert Fox," a seventy-hour period of intense bombing of Iraqi military targets. While the timing of this attack is controversial, there is no doubt that it was necessary. President Clinton ordered the bombing only a few days before his impeachment hearings in the House of Representatives were set to begin. Such a coincidence invited skeptic accusations that Clinton attempted to sidetrack his impeachment by ordering the attacks. Comics suggested that he was mimicking the President's actions in the recent Hollywood hit Wag the Dog.

Unfortunately, this act of aggression was only minimally effective. Even though Hussein's store of chemical weapons is a primary concern of the United States, no chemical weapons factories were targeted in the bombing raids; the United States feared releasing any poisonous substances into the atmosphere. Iraq's missile program, while damaged by these attacks, can be rebuilt easily. This ineffective attack cost the United States $450 million and did not have the anticipated and wanted results; in fact, it has shown that Iraq will not succumb to weapons strikes either.

Since the attack, Iraqi forces have continued to refuse to stay out of the no-fly zones over north and south Iraq. Iraqi vice-president Taha Yassin Ramadan said that his country has been challenging these restrictions by conducting flights within the area. To present a facade of aggression, Iraq has even claimed to have shot down a United States plane; the U.S. has denied any such occurrence. In retaliation, U.S. aircraft fired upon an Iraqi air defense battery after being targeted on radar.

Iraq has also threatened to expel four hundred

The Iraqi capital suffers heavy fire from UN forces deployed to punish Hussein. While the attacks were directed at military targets, the loss of civilian life gave the government a chance to introduce anti-American propaganda.

United Nation monitors of the U.N. food-for-oil program. However, Iraqi trade minister Mohammed Mehdi Saleh rescinded and allowed the monitors to remain. He demanded that all economic sanctions placed upon Iraq be lifted, something to which the United States is sure not to agree.

Unfortunately, U.S.-Iraqi relations have continued to degrade. While the United Nations Special Commission (UNSCOM) and the International Atomic Energy Commission attempted to negotiate an agreement allowing weapon inspectors to return to Iraq, little progress was made. It seemed unlikely that Saddam Hussein would agree to any such agreement until sanctions were lifted, and the United States refused to agree. There looks to be no end to this conflict in the near future.

Sailors aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise prepare the forward flight deck for nighttime flight operations.

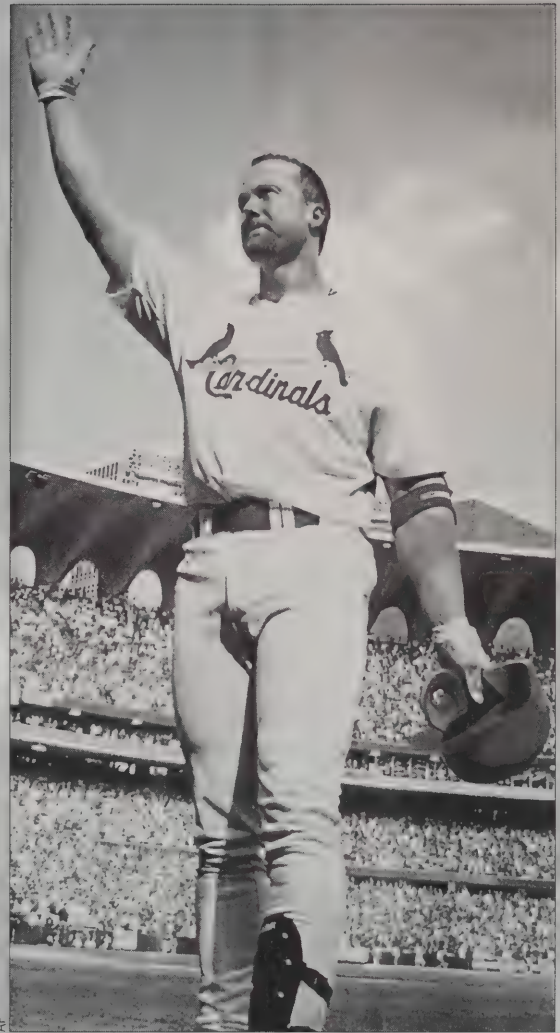

McGwire and Sosa

On September 27, 1998, Mark McGwire's unimaginable 70th home run provided a fitting end to the greatest Major League Baseball season of all time.

The 1994 players' strike left the Major League Baseball fan base with feelings of alienation and bitterness toward the institution. The pedestal on which baseball had been placed for so long came tumbling down in a flurry of broken promises and deep pockets. Fan interest dropped, sponsors pulled out, and the Commissioner's office fumbled with numerous public relations schemes in an attempt to stop the downward spiral. Baseball needed a miracle.

In the dog days of summer a miracle began to surface. Its name was Mark McGwire. McGwire (St. Louis Cardinals) engaged in a season-long home run chase with Sammy Sosa (Chicago Cubs) that was hotly followed by the nation. McGwire, a likeable, selfless father, and Sosa, a rags-to-riches Dominican, gained the support of a majority of the American public in their quest to surpass Roger Maris' previous single-season record of 61 home runs, set in 1961.

On the night of September 8, in St. Louis' Busch Stadium, with the Maris Family and Sammy Sosa present, McGwire hit a 341-foot line drive home run McGwire waves to a roaring crowd after one of his many record-breaking home runs. Although McGwire ultimately earned more home runs than Sosa, the National League's MVP award was given to the Chicago Cubs outfielder.

Although McGwire and Sosa competed to break the record, their friendship never faltered. Their sportsmanship and love for the game has become a reflection of the American spirit.

off Chicago Cubs pitcher Steve Trachsel to break Maris' hallowed record.

It was the shortest home run he hit all season, but it will be the longest remembered. McGwire paid tribute to his family and hugged his son immediately after the hit. Sosa, who had 58 home runs at the time, congratulated him during the celebration.

The jubilation felt by all America was only the culmination of an entertaining competition full of sportsmanship and camaraderie between McGwire and Sosa. McGwire put it best when he said, "I just think it puts baseball back on the map as a sport." Thanks to McGwire and Sosa, baseball is once again our national pasttime.

John Glenn

On February 20, 1962, an Ohio man named John Glenn became an American hero by being the first American to orbit the Earth. His mission aboard the shuttle Friendship 7 lasted only three orbits (four hours and fifty-five minutes) but was considered one of the most important accomplishments in the development of the U.S. space program. After that first historic flight and his time with the space program, Glenn went on to lead a distinguished career as an Ohio senator.

At the end of his tenure as a four-term senator, Glenn, age 77, announced that he would once again be journeying into space. With his nine day trip aboard the space shuttle Discovery, Senator Glenn became the oldest person in history to travel in space.

The launch went as well as could be expected. At approximately 12:30 p.m., the hatch closed the astronauts inside the shuttle, just as President Clinton's Air Force One plane touched down at the landing strip on Cape Canaveral Air Station. At the T-minus 9 minute mark, the launch team held the timer for ten minutes while discussing the status of a master alarm heard during the cabin leak checks after hatch closure. At 2:00 p.m., the countdown resumed, but the Range Safety Officer requested a hold at the T-minus 5 minute mark due to an aircraft in the no fly zone. Despite these small mishaps, the launch occurred without error at 2:20 p.m. EST with "six astronaut heroes and one American legend."

Glenn's time in space was not spent idly (nor glamorously for that matter) as almost every second of his time was put to good use. The main purpose of the trip was to study the effects of space travel on the elderly. Tests were made to examine the breakdown of muscle mass that happens to the elderly on Earth and to everybody in space. Brainwave monitors were attached to his head, eye movement sensors affixed to his face, and a respiration monitor recorded his breathing patterns. With other various wires, gizmos and gadgets almost constantly attached to him, Glenn was the guinea pig of the mission.

Shuttle astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., senator from Ohio, gives a thumbs up on his arrival at Kennedy Space Center's Shuttle.

Ironically, the distinguished senior was on board the ship as a junior member of the team, performing such menial tasks as bar-coding samples of the astronauts' blood and urine, running the blood samples through the onboard centrifuge, and storing the urine bags in the shuttle's freezer. Obviously, these chores are not quite the normal workload of a senator.

Glenn's second journey into space did not inspire the same magnitude of adoration as his original mission. Instead of being hailed as a hero by thousands of wide-eyed schoolchildren, the country saw a burst of elderly-related jokes and cartoons. The good-humored senator responded to such mockery as the cartoon showing him on a space walk, aided by a nursing-home walker, with the simple statement, "I think they're funny."

Space Shuttle Discovery shoots into the heavens on mission STS-95 October 29, 1998. Discovery carries a crew of six, including Payload Specialist John H. Glenn Jr., who is making his second voyage into space after 36 years.

Shakespeare in Love

A theater life has always been one full of uncertainty and doubt, but never more so than in 16th century London. In addition to the formidable task of merely turning a profit, one also had to contend with the Plague, unsanitary working conditions, and rival theater owners engaged in a cut-throat war to steal each other's customers—hardly the easiest way to make a living.

But for a young playwright named Will Shakespeare (Joseph Fiennes), the situation is even more dire: lacking romantic inspiration in his life, he has developed a stubborn case of writer's block. He needs a muse: a lovely lady to sack up with and treasure. Without such a damsel on his mattress, his masterpiece will no doubt never be completed. A fascinating portrait of the genius as a young man is drawn, with sexual frustration, writer's block, and an acute syndrome of an empty wallet. You see, Will Shakespeare has sold his new play, the rollicking comedy Romeo and Ethel, the Pirate's Daughter not to one, but to two theaters at once, and hasn't written a single word. The situation requires immediate attention, so Will sets out to seek his new muse—and finds her in theater—loving Viola de Lesseps (Gwyneth Paltrow). Romantic, dramatic, artistic, and financial complication ensue. The play ends up being not quite as funny as originally planned, gets a slightly different title in the process, and we see Great Literature born.

There's rarely a film that can juggle so many balls in the air without dropping any. Norman and Stoppard create a gallery of comic personages, starting from befuddled theater owner Philip Henslowe (Geoffrey Rush), a hilariously ruthless moneylender to Hugh "The Money" Fennyman, a conceited lead actor Ned Alleyn (Ben Affleck, again in the company of some Good Will) with a big sword and even bigger ego, astonishingly regal Queen Elizabeth (Judi Dench), and other assorted types. The screenplay is chock-full of gags, hidden and not so hidden Shakespearean quotation, and hilarious yet non-intrusive anachronism, like Will's confessor functioning like a shrink, a boat driver asking to read his play, or a mile-long list of people on the theater bill, with the name of the author hardly to be found.

The look of the film is noteworthy as well; not only do we see an uncanny representation in recreating Elizabethan England, with dirt liberally strewn the streets and chamber pots being emptied directly on pedestrian's heads, but there's also gilt, lace, and fireworks of the royal court and the cheap splendor of stage costumes. The realism in the movie can be credited in part to costume designer Sandy

Powell. For example, the extraordinary costume worn by Gwyneth Paltrow, which appears to be covered in jewels, is actually laden with dried beetle wings. The result is an outfit which more accurately reflects materials used during the Elizabethan era. We also see that marketing is not just an element of the 20th century, in that while trying to write in his cluttered office, Will stares uncreatively at a mug that reads, "Souvenir of Stratford-upon-Avon."

Ultimately, Shakespeare in Love ends being a really funny romantic drama, and showing nothing else than the genesis of true art from such humble beginnings as want, dirt, hate, envy, and lust as well as love and hope.

The First Annual MCAS Tests

Two weeks have passed since the infamous MCAS results were released. Put quite mildly, the results of vaunted Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School were decidedly unimpressive.

Placing 46 out of 246 Massachusetts high schools seems decent—until the scores of other supposedly similar high schools are taken into account. Wayland, Weston, Acton-Boxborough, and Concord-Carlisle all exceeded Lincoln-Sudbury's marks by a significant margin.

The poor results can be chalked up to a number of factors. Criticism of the exam's extraordinary thirteen-hour length as well as its poor construction is widespread. Further, some fear that the distinctive L-S curriculum is not able to prepare students for the tests.

However, it seems that the most obvious reason for the poor showing was that students simply did not take the tests seriously. A number used the exam itself as a medium for expressing their discontent with the MCAS tests. "I didn't try because I don't agree with the tests, and I didn't agree with them from the start," said junior Jamie Gustafson.

Some students used the long essay section of the Language Arts test to disparage John Silber and the MCAS tests. Another reportedly wrote the entire essay in Spanish. Others claim to have randomly answered multiple-choice questions, or even to have deliberately put down incorrect answers.

Certainly another factor contributing to the apathy was the fact that the tests had no personal repercussions for students.

"I tried, but I guess I could've tried harder," said junior Erin Reeves. "I didn't try any harder because I knew the tests didn't count for me; it wouldn't be on my college applications or count as a graduation requirement."

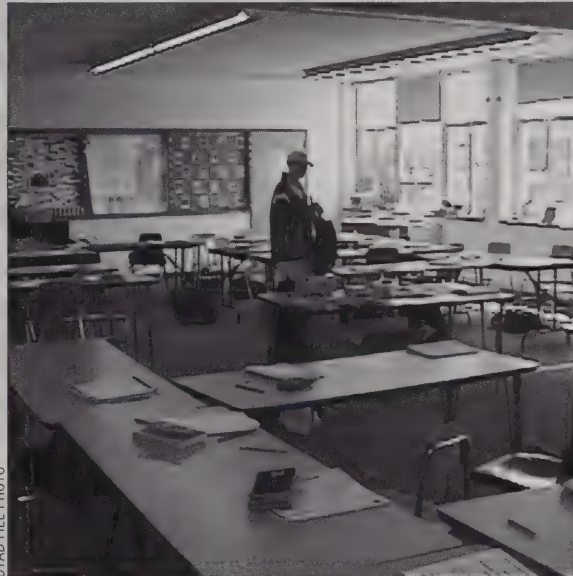

Admittedly, some students did claim to have tried their best, but these appear to have been a small minority.

A number of students suggested that the attitude of the students may have mirrored that of the faculty. Many teachers spent far more time mocking the tests or complaining about them than emphasizing their importance.

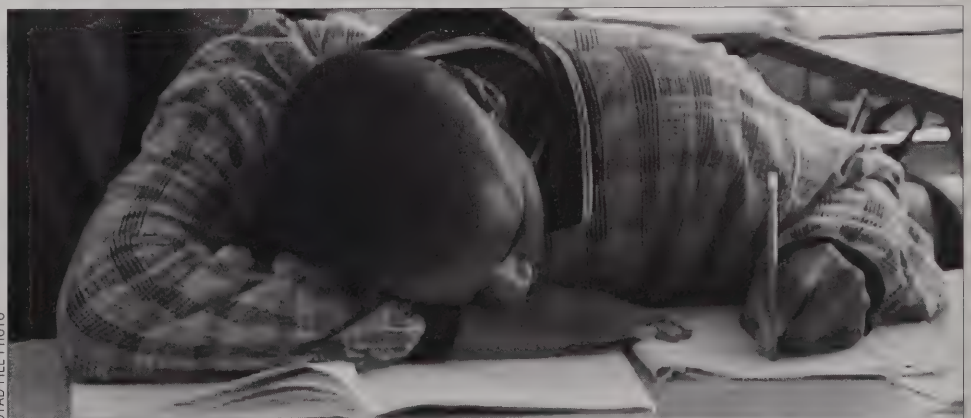

"I didn't try because it didn't mean anything and seemed like a pointless test," said junior Eveline Shue. "All of the questions were either too easy or too hard. Besides, my teachers told us it didn't matter, so why would I try?"

One thing is clear: L-S must perform better on the MCAS tests by the time they become a graduation requirement for the Class of 2003. However, changes in the curriculum and the possible need to teach to the tests may well jeopardize Lincoln-Sudbury's status as "a different kind of place."

Sophomore

Aww yeah ... Sophomores!

We're not frosh anymore!

So how does it feel to not be the youngest ones at L-S? Pretty nice not to be pushed around blue hall quite so much, isn't it? Although, sometimes being a sophomore isn't so fun. Let's see, we have way more homework, harder classes, no more freshmen sports teams and we can't get our Max-ed cards yet. Well, at least we get alternate credit, the joy of not having to worry about SAT's (yet), and some of us will even get our licenses. Maybe it won't be so bad. Just think, it's our last year as underclassmen ...

What Type of Soph R U?

1. What is your favorite class?
 - A. Cutting gym.
 - B. Although I love them all, I prefer my independent study in multi-variable calculus.
 - C. Shakespeare I.
 - D. AP US History because it looks the best on my transcript.
2. What do you do after school?
 - A. I plead the fifth - I'd tell you, but then I'd have to kill you.
 - B. Play games in the computer lab all afternoon before delving into my calculus homework.
 - C. Go home, take a nap, and procrastinate.
 - D. Dedicating my time to a sport so that I can someday be captain - a real resumé builder!
3. What is your ideal girlfriend / boyfriend?
 - A. Whoever is at the party and is intoxicated enough to be willing.
 - B. I don't need girls - I have a computer for that.
 - C. Someone fairly smart, funny, and decent looking.
 - D. Why does it matter? That's not on any college applications!
4. What comes to mind when you think about Driver's Ed?
 - A. Seeing how many times I can get my card stamped without showing up.
 - B. Using calculus to determine safe distances to travel behind other cars.
 - C. Long, boring sessions fighting the urge to sleep.
 - D. I wish it didn't interfere with AP History night classes.
5. What is your favorite extracurricular activity?
 - A. Avoiding housemasters.
 - B. Lincoln-Sudbury Computer Society / Chess Club.
 - C. French Club.
 - D. The Forum beats out all the other resumé padders.
6. What do you do during lunch block?
 - A. Forget the Max Ed card, I'm not even 21! Probably the nearest bar.
 - B. Munching the lunch mummy packed while I hack at lunch-bound employee's computers.
 - C. The caf ... that or in my English teacher's office (gotta make up that test!).
 - D. The consumption of food gets in the way of my productivity. Time is an extra character on my resumé!
7. Where can you usually be found at LS?
 - A. 300 yards away from the school.
 - B. Testing out all the new iMacs in the computer lab.
 - C. Sitting in blue hall.
 - D. Meeting with a teacher to see what extra credit I can get.

THE RESULTS ...

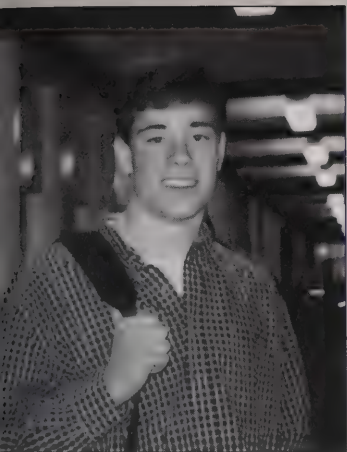

If you chose:

Mostly A's: Phew! You've just narrowly escaped the clutches of the Campus Aide while you tried to escape school property MaxEd Card-less! You decide to take a rest instead of attending English.

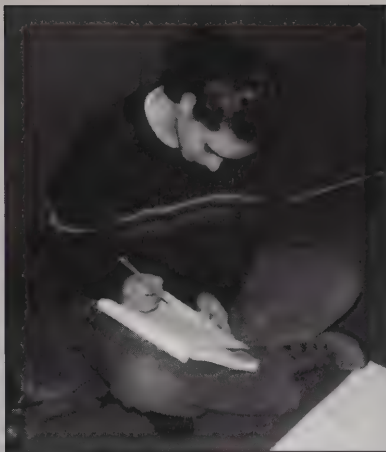

Mostly B's: Out of class a bit early. Your first destination is the computer lab to check for any new e-mail. A little more free time? Time to add something to the calculus forum!

Mostly C's: You live life easily. You take things as they go, but like a daily routine. You get decent grades and participate in a few extra-curricular activities. You are just the average kind of sophomore.

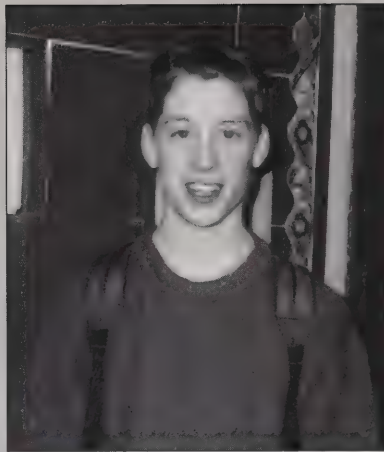

Mostly D's: You are the student that gets depressed if an A- shows up on your report card. Then you soon remember that you should be using that time to make up for it on your resumé.

Frosh

Frosh Year

It isn't Brooks, and it's definitely not Curtis. L-S is a new environment to which we have adjusted surprisingly well. Many were intimidated at first, but were not to be threatened ...The class of 2003 is by far the largest class yet with 320 students; the upperclassmen were anything but excited.

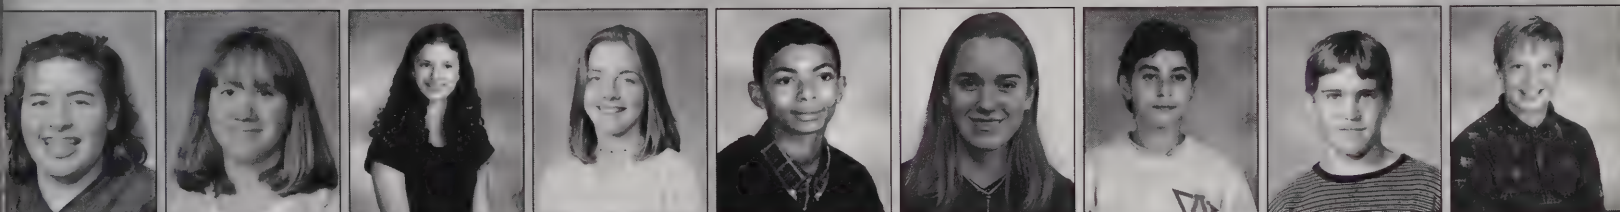

We were prepared to take on the tasks that lay ahead in our high school career. We have already made a good impression on everyone in the L-S community and intend to maintain our reputation, building on the positive note we have struck. We are in the spotlight here at L-S and are ready to step up to an entirely new stage of L-S life: sophomore year.

NEWWEY DEFEATS TRUMAN

J. P. Newwey Inducted as Mayor People Lined up

NEWWEY, Mayor-elect of Chicago, today inducted into office at the Chicago Convention Center. He was surrounded by a large crowd of supporters and onlookers. The ceremony was held in the presence of many dignitaries and officials. Newwey, who was elected in a landslide victory, expressed his gratitude to the voters and his commitment to the city. He also mentioned the challenges ahead and the need for unity. The crowd cheered and waved flags as the new mayor took the oath of office. The ceremony was a significant event in the city's history, marking a new chapter in Chicago's governance.

The German Club meets weekly and participates in a variety of activities. Members attend plays and other cultural events, as well as host frequent dinner parties. For three weeks in the spring the club participates in the German American Partnership Program, an exchange providing students from Germany and L-S a chance to experience on another's lifestyles. This year members will be hosting fifteen students and will show them the town and city in a number of field trips. In June 1999, L-S students spent three weeks in Germany, travelling to Berlin, living with families in Herdiche, and attending high school for ten days.

Model UN students participate in the National Model UN Conferences during the year. They represented Cuba in various UN committees. Each student tried to represent his country in the debate on two topics his committee pursued in an attempt to build a resolution towards solving the problem. Skills in international and political analysis, strategizing, negotiation, public speaking, parliamentary procedure, and extemporaneous debate are used as each committee tries to build an international consensus on tough issues. Two thousand students from around the country and a few foreign countries participate in the three-day conference.

The L-S Key Club is a community service organization that benefits the Lincoln and Sudbury communities. During the fall, the Key Club holds many fundraising activities. The money raised from these events goes toward our main project - an annual Thanksgiving Dinner for elderly residents of Lincoln and Sudbury. Later in the year, the Key Club will continue to raise money for other community service projects. This year, we hope to adopt a family, for whom we will prepare food baskets, or to run a food or clothing drive for the less fortunate.

The Fashion Show Club was started in 1998 by Adam Drawas, Nieka McBrayer, Monique Worrell, Tyree Burch, and Kenisha Hardnett. The main goal was to produce a student-run benefit fashion show and auction that promoted diversity and brought together different types of students from each grade as well as staff. In order to produce the show, the students solicited donations of goods and services for the show and auction from local and national businesses. The Benefit Fashion Show and Auction was held on May 3, 1998 in the Boston Park Plaza Hotel to an audience of 350. All proceeds went to a charity of the co-coordinators' choice; in 1998, the proceeds went to the Make-A-Wish and the Team Harmony Foundations. Fashion Show 2000 will closely follow the format and goals of the first show. It will be held at the Boston Park Plaza hotel on May 7, 2000. All proceeds from Fashion Show 2000 will go to the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The Martin Luther King Action Project is an organization centered around students committed to serving the community at large. The project sponsors a variety of trips and events, all with the common goal of helping others. Such events as the Jimmy Mack March to defeat AIDS and the Annual Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Award Assembly are dedicated to raising awareness among students at L-S and beyond. The trips, such as those to Haley House, The Greater Boston Food Bank, Rosie's Place, and The Children's Action Corps, are part of the effort to directly assist those less fortunate. The main purpose of the project is to help people in need in the surrounding communities. However, MLKAP also seeks to expand the horizons of L-S students by giving them opportunity to experience the joy of charitable actions. The project hopes to create community-minded students who will serve not just in high school, but throughout their lives.

The Young Women's Leadership Club began to continue the work of the Young Women's Leadership Conference. The Conference is an annual two day overnight retreat that gets students and faculty together to discuss issues important to young women. The Conference hopes to promote relationships and leadership opportunities for young women whose paths may not otherwise cross. The club has been meeting for about 5 years. This all-female club provides its members with the chance to develop leadership skills, to explore issues important to young women and to create strong bonds with other young women and faculty at L-S. One of the main events the club sponsors besides the yearly conference is Shadow Day, a chance for the members to spend a day 'shadowing' a professional in a career that interests them.

Arts, Drama, Music

MUSIC

DRUM

The Essence of The Arts at Lincoln-Sudbury

At performance time, the posters go up urging you to attend the show. At the end of a project, students artwork goes on display for you to see in passing. If you have ever seen Shakespeare in Rogers, heard the Chamber Singers, or seen a student's painting, you realize the incredible theatrical, musical, and artistic talent which some of our students possess.

Down the hall into the arts department, students find a wealth of materials and resources to work with. Teachers are devoted to the classes they love to teach, like drawing, jewelry, photography, pottery, and film. New classes are offered every year due to students' enthusiasm and creativity.

Every week, rehearsals for various shows occur after school or in the evening. Students devote a great amount of their time to memorizing lines, painting sets, or learning how to use the light board. The drama department, upheld by Bill and Judy Plott and John Germonatta, works hard to put all aspects of a production together for their audience.

Music students spend class time in Choir, Orchestra, or Band, as well as in smaller ensembles meeting after school on Monday or Thursday nights. Students also use their skills in groups outside L-S, like Junior and Senior Districts, and All-States. Ms. Smith and Mr. Costello give all of their students full support and encouragement to improve, to practice, and, most importantly, to enjoy their music.

Hopefully, the work and effort put in to the arts is appreciated just as much as the talent which is displayed to the rest of the school. The arts, drama, and music departments help our students develop their talents and to diversify our school community.

Damn Yankees

Mark Rutman (03) offers some advice

Scott Evans (02) has trouble "just saying no"

Broadway musicals are not a necessity in a high school's drama department, as has been demonstrated by their absence in the LSB Players' theatrical repertoire over the past few years.

Director John Germanotta has proven with his latest LSB Player's production, Damn Yankees, that musicals need not be avoided at all costs. If Germanotta is willing, his directing skills could satisfy the musical appetites of many members of the Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School community for years to come.

Damn Yankees, the inspiration for CBS's new television series, Now and Again, is the story of a poor, middle aged schlub named Joe Boyd, played with expert haplessness and sympathy by Jake Brooks-Harris. Boyd is the world's most loyal fan of the Washington Senators, a baseball team whose collective butt is constantly whopped by almost every other team in the league; especially the New York Yankees.

One day Boyd is approached by the devil in the form of the debonairly evil Mr. Applegate, given sadistic charm by actor Caleb Summers. Mr. Applegate presents Joe with a proposition: become the greatest baseball player ever and win the Senators the pennant in exchange for his soul. Against his better judgement, Joe Boyd agrees, and is turned into the young and athletic Joe Hardy, portrayed by the talented sophomore, Scott Evans.

From there, we are taken into a charming musical fantasy with fun choreography, expert musical accompaniment, and impressive

Jenn Schandelmayer (01) and Jake Brooks-Harris (00)

Christen Adkins (00) and Caleb Summers (00) make a "devilish" couple, don't you think?

cast, in order of appearance: Jake Brooks-Harris, Jenn Schandelmayer, Caleb Summers, Scott Evans, Craig Golden, Kate Fiorucci, Christen Adkins, Nelle Sacknoff, Abby Smith, Emma Herwood-Forbes, Nick Fantasia, Brodie Hall, Jon Miller, Mark Rutman, Stephanie Keene, Mallory Jaffe, David Kahn, Stefanie Smith, Megan McCarthy, Tom Flanagan, Jake Elkin, Liz Tanno, Lea Stayner, Ariana Millner-Hanley, Erika Roderick.

ets. Sure, we're not on Broadway, but energy and enthusiasm are prevalent among the cast.

The show is highlighted by the spirited performances of several young actors. Nick Fantasia gives the audience a muppet of a character in the baritone-speaking Henry. Christen Adkins shines as the luscious Lola, Mr. Applegate's hip-swivelling, man-seducing assistant. This is quite a change from Adkins' lovely portrayal of the sainted Hermoine in last fall's LSB Player's production of The Winter's Tale.

I was particularly amused by the chemistry between Adkins and Summers, since the last time I saw them play off each other was when they acted as the two, chaste lovers in the Brooks Middle School's production of Iolanthe. As the show's leading actor, Scott Evans impresses with wide-eyed, good-guy innocence, and a wonderful singing voice.

Unfortunately, the Kirshner Auditorium provides inadequate acoustics for the talented orchestra, which ends up drowning out some of the actors' singing. Subpar facilities have been plaguing the school's Drama Department for years now, and are yet to be rectified.

The book and music are standard Broadway fare, not too demanding for a high school production. Perhaps, as time goes by, Germanotta could work his way up to the level of, say, Sunday in the Park with George? I, for one, am eager to find out.

Love's Labour's Lost

Craig Golden (01) is all wrapped up

Chuck Schwager listens attentively to Ari Brettman (00)

Love's Labour's Lost opened with high energy and high expectations. The LSB Player's version of the Shakespearian play was given a contemporary setting on the beach, complete with a chorus of beach-bums and wahinis, lifeguards and Cap'n Jimbo (Jim Newton), the snack man. The opening number, "Surfin' USA," included all 67 cast members. The enthusiastic singing and dancing, along with the very talented band, the Nine Worthies, gave the play a terrific start and set the tone for the rest of the evening.

Love's Labour's Lost was set on a beach in L.A. In the court, the King of L.A. (Caleb Summers), and his friends, Berowne (Andy Mosher), Dumaine (Brian Grierson), and Longaville (Joby Earle) all sign an oath together, swearing not to touch any women for the next three years.

Meanwhile, the audience learns that the clown, Costard (Craig Golden), has had a forbidden liaison with the surfer girl Jaquenetta (Abby Smith), who is secretly loved by Armado (Jake Brooks-Harris).

In the Second Act, the Princess of France (Stephanie Keene) enters with her friends, Maria (Alissa Gordon), Katharine (Preeti Kohli),

and Rhonda (Christen Adkins). The King of L.A. and his friends begin to fall in love with the four women, and the King promises them suitable accommodations at his beach. This part of the play revolves around a comedy of errors with love letters sent from Armado to Jaquenetta and from Berowne to Rhonda. Unfortunately, Costard mistakenly delivers Armado's letter to Rhonda, but Holofernes (Chuck Schwager) learns of the mix-up and reports the confusion to the King. Finally, the King and his friends overhear each other "privately" declare their love for the Princess or one of her friends, and they decide to tell the four women.

Cast, in order of appearance: Caleb Summers, Andy Mosher, Joby Earle, Brian Grierson, Jon Miller, Tom Flanagan, Craig Golden, Jake Brooks-Harris, Emma Sherwood-Forbes, Abby Smith, Stephanie Keene, Alissa Gordon, Preeti Kohli, Christen Adkins, Dave Pedulla, Chuck Schwager, Ari Brettman, Lea Stayner, Scott Evans, Lindsey Nicholson, Kati Devaney, Mallory Caffé, Midge Callahan, Jen Price, Jim Newton

After intermission, the women decide to switch gifts and to disguise themselves, and the men are fooled. When the trick is exposed, the men declare their love to the appropriate lady. Armado finally gets his wish to be with Jaquenetta and learns she is pregnant with his child. It seems as if the five couples will marry and there will be a happy ending. However, the Princess of France learns that her father has died. The Princess and her friends agree to mourn for one year, at the end of which they will start their relationships again and eventually get married.

The play was quite professional and well done. The principal actors and actresses gave convincing performances and showed great chemistry. The costumes were also extremely well done and made the beach scene even more convincing. The song and dance numbers were simply hysterical. The number that stole the show was "Do You Wanna Dance?". In this number, the male beach bums in the production let loose with some crazy dance moves. The LSB Players production, Love's Labour's Lost with a twist, provided four nights of quality entertainment.

L-S Dance Troupe

Everybody dance now! First of all we would like to thank all the dancers. The number of new faces came as a pleasant surprise. Your attitude and enthusiasm made our first show a huge success. We made the first Dance Troupe alumni proud. Let's take a look at the Dance Troupe's schedule. Monday's girls didn't have a lot of experience, but the work they put in made "Fast As You Can" impressive. Ms. Gainer, we owe it all to you. On Tuesdays and Thursdays Christine made us "Larger Than Life," not to mention the flashlights. Your spirit kept us going! Laurie and Maddie your wonderful choreography resulted in two beautiful ballets. What can we say about the men? They have the slickest moves thanks to Eileen and Jay. Maybe someday "The Full Monty" will be presented at L-S. Everyone's work has made the Dance Troupe a permanent part of L-S and we know that dance will grace Roger's stage for many years to come. We can't wait to see you guys next year!

We started this season with four goals in mind: Win the League, Win the Regional, Win the State title, and last but certainly not least, the Sportsmanship Award. As of now we have a 13-2 record and will most likely tie for the league title. The rest is still to come. However, our hopes of the Sportsmanship Award fell by the wayside, partially because ...

- What are the pin indicators, Charlie?
- Do you want to be quiet while I'm putting? ... Do you want to suck my D#@*?
- Buddy you can't swing while I'm hitting ... Fine hit another ball
- Every time I take a shot you guys say something or have some bodily function ... no wonder why you win all your matches
- Can you put the flag back in? ... NO
- Did you get a six on that last hole? ... Yeah, whatever, you're not gonna win
- Hey Bilbo Baggins you hit this ball
- Joel sucks

Some other fan favorites ...

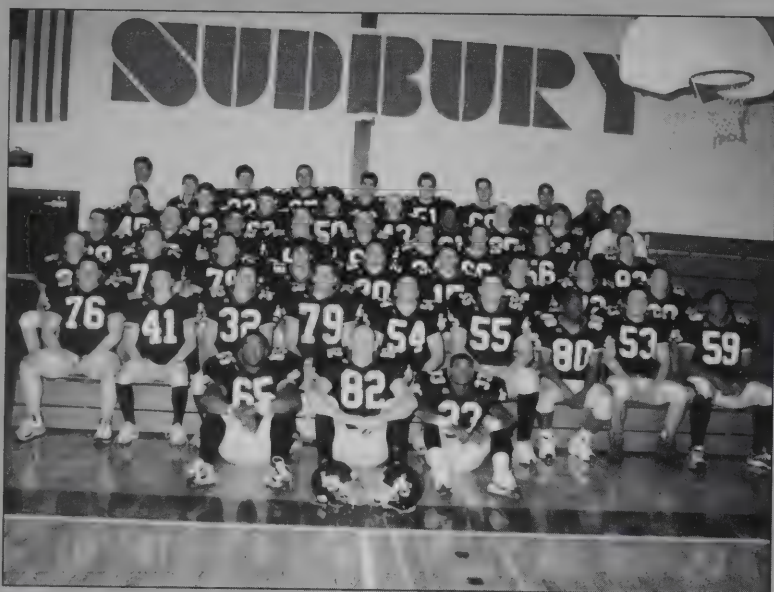

- Is she the blonde one ... Oh yeah, she's pretty hot
- Oh are you alright (European Stylee)
- Rooney and Greg, I think your ball is plugged
- Will Nike Mesh hat be there? ... Will Jumpsuit Jethro
- Mr. Bixby, Dr. Zayess
- Titleist 4 AJGA ... Dave that's American Junior Golf Association
- Do they always do that at this course to distract the golfers? ... Yeah, sometimes

The Best Pairings ever assembled: Amanda Hug + Kiss and Emily Berman, Dorkis and Swearking, Scar-tissue and Bawitdaba, Wife-beater and Christian Okoye, and Bilbo Baggins and Negris (Actual Pairing).

We would like to give a special thanks to Coach "No Diggity" Dimaggio whose distinct laugh, lenient behavior policy, and knowledge of the game have made for an illustrious golf career. We would like to give mad props to Brian our Assistant Coach for his hands-off policy. Good luck "rebuilding." L-S Golf Rulz!

Yeah, girls!

This was a season to remember! Even though we were one of the youngest teams in the league, we still showed everyone that we could compete with just about anyone and win. Third in the League, with quite the large trophy! As Coach said, "You don't have to worry about the girls; they'll always try their hardest." Boy, did we! Everyone always gave it everything. And oh, the memories ...

Sophia. No, Coach, it's Sophie ... Where does she get all this energy? ... Kathryn, too girl for the girls ... Tiger Lily, Mighty Duck, and Mighty Turtle - where does he get these names? ... What are we doing for school spirit? ... Wait, we had school spirit today? Oops! ... Locker room decorations ... How many laps for a warm-up - 1? Too late, Yuri's here ... Run backwards-that was interesting ... Freshman and their backpacks ... How much longer do we have to run for - is anyone timing this? ... Watch out for the dog poop in lane 2 - uh - oh, it got flattened ... Of course, we ran over the weekend ... What does this stretch? ... Are you hydrated? - Where's the bathroom? Woods!!! ... Power Bars, all the way! ... Only bananas & bread for you ... I'm never late ... I'm already tired ... My legs are going to fall off ... One more time-how does the course go? ... Westford's course from hell-need we say more? ... The fat girl beat you?! ... The mountain at Concord was fun ... McIntyre! ... Go out hard-see, she didn't die ... Run up there butts ... New tent-and it took us only 2 hours to set it up ... Coach can we stop for food? ... Ribbons. Guys what ribbons?? ... Is the bus driver lost - 2 minutes is plenty of time for warm-up ... Franklin Park, our home away from home ... Circuit training-feel the burn, baby! ... Push-ups, Superman, and crunches-our three buddies. How many repetitions?! ... Jelly Bellies ... Girly push-ups ... Where are your bottoms? ... Pasta parties ... Who will bring the soda? ... You had how many plates of spaghetti?? ... No, I will not do my chicken impression again ... The boys kept us entertained ... Mahon?? ... Next year, three little piggies ...

Girls, it was quite a year! Yes, we are insane and proud of it! Some people say running is not a team sport, but we know better! Everyone was always there for each other-through pain, sickness, and broken toes! You guys always come through and ran your best. Thanks for a great year with so many memories! Keep running!

Well girls, it's hard to live up to a Cinderella season, but we worked hard and managed to have some fun times. With many new additions this season, we created a fun-filled chapter of memories:

"Are they irreversible?" -Kirsten, Kagey steal Nelle's jacket, "Anyone like haddock" - Kimmy the tiny tornado, "Ya I got a tatoo ... on my ...", One walking captain, Freshman ... wanna go for a swim? Katie Noon contends in the 10 finger game, "Annie ... the KY is missing ... ya Jelly!" Wallop Weston?! "Hey where's Courtney?" ...Boston Latin "Corynne ... yummy pancakes?" Bickfords mascots, Nelle's outfits, "Don't tell the opponent that our stopper is crippled and our goalie is on muscle relaxants!" Rach you did WHAT six times?" "Freaky things happen on Halloween" "We are dressing up tomorrow ... khakis DON'T count!" "Stop knitting that friggin' sweater and put the ball in the net!" Corynne-you look like an ornament that just dropped off a X-mas tree. Why does Michelle have the balls again ... Annie and Kirsten you're freshman too! "Does everyone have their mouthguards?" ... okay what did you forget now? "Anyone want some peeps?" Newton-how about playing the ball rather than the person (Kim gets dumped). Marion- their SCOUT or our REF? Who's ankle is NOT braced or taped? Kate, welcome to the pasta party, hope you enjoyed the carpet ride. Becca, way to get off your feet! Katie M., shut your mouth! Mambo #5, Remember offense- be angry Bees ... BUZZZZ! 1,2,3; always remember our classical interlude.

We will miss you next year. Never hold back, for you have nothing to fear ... empty your buckets! Pete, we missed you, but thanks for all your support. Paula, way to step up as a rookie. Alicia, you really came alive. Thank you parents, coaches, fans. We could not have done it without your support and cheers.

Thank you L-S Soccer for 4 wonderful years!

Hey girls! We have all learned a lot this season. We have put together chants, cheers, and dances; very pregnant coach even taught us a few! We have learned how to do 40+ jumps in one practice and to announce our voices while cheering. Sometimes the back row can even be heard! We scrambled to find practice space, whether in the gym or the hallway, without being run over by the track team. We have gotten to know one another and had a lot of fun too. We even managed a liberty! Thanks Coach, Mrs. H., and Michelle for giving up your free time. We really appreciate it. Good luck next year!

Love your Captains,

The Boys' winter track team would like to take this opportunity to thank our coaches and parents for all the support. Coach McMahon was always enthusiastic and outcoaching our opponents. Yuri got our von Mertons [real nam: Mureson/Doleac] over 5 feet, and Coach Hart was always helping out when he could.

Two more things We won the league!!!! Steiner is single!!!! 'The Moments'

"Hey Abadi, what are you doing for New Years tonight? Gonna go out and do something dangerous? Of course not Coach- not during track season! Come on Abadi, you should be doing something dangerous!"

-Steiner and love connection ... how about Sarah and Hillary?

"Steiner, you just ran the fastest time in the league today, gonna get [girls] tonight? I got the perfect pickup line for you ... 'I think you're fast'"

-Freshmen making fun of Abadi

"Where'd Minehan go?"

-Jerseys and ties to school "but we are going to look [bad]"

"James and Greg, if we add the size of both your heads together it would still be smaller than Kevin's!"

Thanks for the great season girls! We proved that L-S track is a force in the DCL and it will only get better in the future. To the underclassmen: You all have so much talent and you really stepped up this year. To the seniors: We may have been a small group but we had fun. Thanks for being great leaders and good luck next year.

*"Distance ... it stinks!" Bette Midler, Slacker Group. *Jen-No, you can't alternate throws. * You're not running...What are you doing? Get on the starting line! * Stay on your feet, Shelby! * Caitlin - Don't corrupt all the freshmen. * Synchronized sit-ups. * Running in the snow - ear-warmers? * Van rides ... Kristen A.? * Our drills are ... um ... interesting. * "Oh, I'm sorry, was that mean?" -Ellen * Philana, are you sick AGAIN? * Nice pre-wrap Julie. * Papa Gino's parties * Fitness Center days were fun, esp. the music * Bus rides & interesting conversations *
Everyone excited for the meet?

And to sum up the season: So, hypothetically speaking, what if I just happened to miss my race?

But seriously, somehow, we always found our way to the starting line and fought through to the finish. Good luck next year, we'll miss you.

Well, we have had an interesting season. We conquered a team (AB), who we did not think it was humanly possible to defeat, and we lost to a team who we thought was a snap to conquer. We have never been what we call a very powerful team when it came to competition, but our heads and hearts have always been in the right place, most of the time. As we finish up our last few competitions, we would like to leave you guys with a few reminders. Beware of ring worm, it could be a killer, singing 100 bottles of beer might be fun, but it is annoying, hold on when you go over speed bumps, and most of all:

Sarah: the ankle cracking might not be healthy

Emily: warning, those straddle halves can be a killer

Jen: if nothing else fails, fish flop

Bethany: 25 cents per wedge pick

Kelsey: just do floor

Jane: careful the beam bites

Victoria: stick those jump fulls

Melanie: remember, the oranges, for once

Lindsay: Dance it up, "cutie"

Christie: second time's a charm

Cory: do the Giants (bribes also work)

We leave knowing that you guys will keep on the tradition of winning one more meet than the year before. And if nothing else fails, wear ribbons. Thanks to Meg, Kathy, Jen, and Kathryn for pushing us to the outer limits.

Dear Team,

Thanks for a great season. It's been a hell of a ride so far... We really picked things up as the season progressed, and are coming together nicely. We have been blessed with one of the senior classes ever. This star-studded cast consists of captains Thomas Prendergast and Keith McGilvray, forwards Tim Pope, Andy Narcus, Bruiser, and defensemen Matt Guanci and Mike Dolan, and how could we forget Spany Spankowitz. Thanks Coach Quinn and Coach Doyle for your guidance and your confidence, as well as your obscure one-liners. Here are some memories to forever cherish:

-“I was just eating a sausage when the kid (MD) just stuck his a in my face” -Kenney Roberts

-“Yeah, they're the two C's, Quinn and Camilo...no, no, I was thinking of Kevin...my uncle spells Kevin with a C” -ML (hey, do you spell quitter with a c?)

-“You don't know if they ate mom's hot apple pie, or if they smoked a shoelace dipped in cowsh*t” -Coach

-“If the pool is eight feet deep, then we swim eight feet deep, if it's four feet, then we swim four feet, and if there's no water, then we're over in the corner playin' with ourselves.” -Coach

-“The goalie is luckier than a dog with two dks.” -Coach

-“This team is expecting to lose so don't disappoint them” -Coach

-“You're trying to stuff it in from behind, like a Greek.” -Coach

-“You're standing there with your dk hanging out, waiting for a pigeon to land on it.” -Coach

-Thanks especially to Jennifa Croto

Thanks to all the guys who chipped in this year: Rabbi Smiley Mooreberg, Schnorr-Mooney, Mike Modano, Milli Vanilli Ice Ice Steven, Blades Patton, Kenney Roberts, Gayvin Quinn, Camilo Arizmendi, Mike Pope, Spuehler, Centauro and Chipwich-way to lose the water bottles.

This year the team had more moons than Jupiter (Flanagan, Mattes, Walsh, Wallace, just to name a few)

- King: We went there, girlfriend

- Judd: denial ain't just a river in Africa, and you're swimming in it, - "I'm faster than Kellogg, he just beats my time."

- Red Sonia: We are glad you've finally accepted your 2-way status.

- John- "They can't stop us, its legal."

"My back hurts, this reminds me of the time I had to crawl home from the bus."

- Dust, Dusté, Dust-o-Rama, Baron-von-Dostinstien, Makin' Dust

- Bloom- Heart of a champion, eye of the tiger, ass of a 15 year old virgin.

- Patty Boy: No amount of Heat will cure frostbite- Tiere -

- "I'm out of the closet, I'm a raging Thesbian!"

- Fantasia- Myles McCloy says Hello from the way back

- Botterman- Exposure is a crime, or is it?"

- Graceffa- You were successful this year at not getting beaten up by Gilbert. Freshmen Girls- so many names, so little time

- So ... Bridget, Kate, Daryn ... Doing anything after practice?

- Do Not forget special members Graham and Solo, (sorry burr is broken)

- RIP - Mattes - the elder, Raonchy Guanchy, Roose, Loos, Carl Utopia, Cooto, Bush

Myles, it in your hands now.

Signed,

The Sublime Prince of the Royal Secret

Well girls, it's only one week into the season now, but already we know that the season will hold many great adventures and hopefully just as many victories. There's a lot of talent on the team this year, especially with the younger girls. And, according to coach, we're going to be league champions this year. We anticipate huge turnout after the proms, because no one ever wants to miss a Saturday meet, esp. after a big night out. Think about it ... running in circles is just too much fun!

This first week we had some good fun
 Supermans, drills, and a little sun
 Good running form: use your arms, relax your hands
 And NEVER forget the importance of pants
 Running into the lacrosse team is certainly fun
 Maybe by June people will stop using lane 1
 Distance is great, with the loop and the woods
 And sprinters are too cause they're oh so good
 We've got the lead right out of the blocks
 Look out DCL - L-S track rocks!

Green

I give these flowers and fruits, these leafy sprays, and thy heart also, throbbing for your sake, into your two white hands - oh, do not break
such poor gifts, nor your eyes deny them praise.

I come all covered yet with dew the breeze of morning turns to ice upon my face.
Let my weariness, before your knees,
dream these dear moments which will give it peace.

Let my head, still ringing with your last kisses, settle on your soft young breast;
and when the splendid hurricane has passed,
perhaps I'll sleep a little while you rest.

Hey Girls,

It was a great season, thanks for making our last season memorable. To: Mr. Plummer, Ms. Childs, Nancy, Mr. Swank, and Bert: you have been there for us on and off the field, thank you for your dedication and support.

We will never forget tryouts ... Corrine, don't forget to stretch your "leg"!! Emily, watch out for that bat, duck next time, you are a winner. Philana, what happened to your knees?? Heads up Sarah's at bat LOOK OUT!!!! Marissa, do you love New York?

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN ...

Kristen, sure ... you say you were abducted by aliens ... excuses, excuses. Stephanie, yes ... he is a boy, yes ... he is very hot, yes ... he is too old. Lauren, way to hit the Concord pitcher ... job well done it took her out. Marissa, contrary to what we told you the camel is now our team mascot. Courtney, next time you go sky diving remember to pull the release cord when you get stuck in a tree. Emily BERMAN, mmm BOP, no need to lie anymore, we know you love those Hanson brothers. Christen, What can we do to quiet you down?!? Lysa, "I know my calculus it says U+ME=US" you are the biggest 2+Gether fan ever. Nell, Home Run hitter Curran ... you act like you have a batting cage in your house. Bethany, way to get into a fight with the Concord pitcher ... she did hit you on purpose, we got your back.

We're not sure if these things happened or not, but if they did, WOW we can predict the future ... Psychic Network here we come!! Thanks once again to the team, Ando, Ms. O'Neil, and of course our Coaches. Good luck next year!

Love Always, 3,4,5 AKA Corrine, Sarah & Philana

This is the story of the 2000 L-S Sailing Team. As a result of our team's decrease in size from 28 last year to 16 this year we have been forced to buy twice as much food at Tom's to continue our support of local business. Second to food is sailing. We have had quite a few interesting incidents this year on the water. It all started when Fletcher showed up dressed as a pirate and flew a Jolly Rancher from his boat. Though some were intimidated, most followed suit the next day. We have all found ways to combat the evil forces of the Charles River. After Sarah, Ruth and Joanna came down with the flumen carolis virus, we spent three weeks in scientific labs trying to find a cure for the disease, when Meredith came up with a cure. Beth had her bouts with the boom on seventeen occasions throughout the course of the season. As a result of excessive exposure to Charles River water, she has grown a third ear on her left arm. Watch for an article in an upcoming Weekly World News about this incident. Dave K. and Brad started their own private serenading service off the CBI Mercuries, but it failed when Brad's amp fell in the water, electrocuting the entire Harvard crew team. As a result of our too-windy-to-sail days, we have had many a frisbee match on the L-S sailing field. These games inspired Vanessa to leave the team and join the US Olympic full-contact frisbee team. Mid-season, Jamie hijacked a Duck Boat and blocked our opponents boats during a race, giving us the victory. Due to a switch in the CBI bathroom door code, we have yet to recover Dave B. and Brodie, whom we hope will still be there next year. One day, Neil and Graham released all of the boats into the water, causing the largest traffic jam in Charles River history. And how can we forget the captains, Mark, Nicole and Maggie? Due to their exemplary sailing abilities, the CBI dock staff gilded their L-S life jackets, which will eternally fly on the flagpole at CBI until somebody dumps them into the Charles, adding them to the unending pile of trash. We could not have done any of this, however, without our great coach Sob, who will never see a season like this one again. In all seriousness, we had a fantastic season full of fun. Good luck next year.

This year's volleyball team will be all about domination, baby. Even though the team will only have 4 returning varsity players, we have recruited a few new players and some of last year's junior varsity players. If you ask me, when I see some of those boys working on the court, I get tingles. I know I wouldn't be so eager to start the season if it weren't for our team's two new coaches, Judy McClung and _____. I feel as though I have been taught more about the game in the first few weeks of the season than in my first two years of playing. Our coaches have shown us how to perform every move on the court with more intensity and skill. This year we have players who can jump higher, hit harder, pass with more accuracy, and actually set the ball where we have always been hoping it would go.

Now hopefully next year's players will promise me they will always pass on the legend of Volleyball Man and deliver the milk on time. Oh yeah, Todd, stop sucking up and suggesting we run complexes. Scott, chill on the pumpage or the muscleage. Nick, don't ever dye your hair orange, again. Wazeem, zip it, zip it good! Stu, stay tall and try soap. Kurly, same as Wazeem. And last but not least, Noonan, say hi to your sister for me. Well, I won't be with you next year, but you'll hear me up in the stands yelling at the ref.

Good Luck and show others how to love the game,

Your Captain, Pete Edling (milk man)

Sports: A Year in Review

Shoemaker runs away with DCL crown, breaks record

Senior Jarrod Shoemaker won the Dual County League Cross-Country Championship by an amazing 45 seconds over the second place finisher and set a new course record with a time of 13:17.4. Only two Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School boys have ever won the league championship in its 25 year history.

The odds-on favorite in the league from the beginning of the year, Shoemaker has shown that he is peaking at the right time of the season to make a splash at the Massachusetts State Championship Meet or even at the Northeast Regional meet, which is held in New York.

The league championship has traditionally been a hotly contested meet; for the past several years, the winner has triumphed by only a few seconds. The previous record was set in 1997 by Westford Academy's Tyler Bloom, who outlasted Richard Lincoln (L-S '99) and Shoemaker. Last year looked to be L-S's year to have an individual take first place, as Bloom was just recovering from mononucleosis. However, Bloom out-kicked Lincoln and Shoemaker over the final 200 meters to capture the league crown.

This year, both Lincoln and Bloom have moved on to college, leaving Shoemaker to dominate the league in each dual meet along with the league championship. No one from the DCL has finished within 30 seconds of him this year, and he has been the most dominant Dual County

Senior Jarrod Shoemaker's time of 13:17 beat the old course record by six seconds League cross-country runner in recent memory.

Conditions at L-S on October 30th were very favorable to set a new course record, and Shoemaker ran with that in mind. He finished with a time of 13 minutes and 17 seconds over 2.7 miles. He ran a 4:45 split time for the first mile and 9:48 for the two-mile split. His time of 13:17.4 beat the old record of 13:21 set by Bloom in 1997.

Now, several challenges lie ahead for Shoemaker. He must go to the State Class meet and compete against other runners from Massachusetts Division II high schools, where he is expected to place highly and run under 16:00 on the 3.1 mile course at Franklin Park. Then he will most likely proceed to the Massachusetts State Championship meet and aims to place in the top five. Should he accomplish that, he would move on to the Foot Locker Northeast Regional meet in New York. This meet is the qualifier for the National Championship meet in Florida.

Next year, Shoemaker hopes to run for Dartmouth College, where he attended a running camp over the summer. Dartmouth is ranked as one of the top 25 track and cross-country programs in the country. No matter how the rest of this season goes for him or next year turns out, he will at least have captured the DCL title that had proven so elusive for L-S in previous years.

Sophomore leads boys' downhill skiing to DCL title

Dustin Seitz, a sophomore at Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School, made his mark this winter as a member of the boys' Downhill Ski Team.

Dusty, who was introduced to skiing by his parents at a very young age, has been competing since sixth grade. His strength is in the slalom race, which is faster and shorter than the more common giant slalom race. The slalom race involves more flags and quicker turns, making the margin for error much greater.

Originally from Minnesota, Seitz moved to Sudbury this past summer. His presence on the ski team is one of the reasons why L-S finished the season as the number one team in the Dual County League.

Though the season got off to a slow start due to the lack of snow, all was not lost. Seitz placed third or fourth in most of his races this year. He is impressed with the level of competition from the high school teams in New England. Compared with the competition in Minnesota, which was clearly divided between those who skied on United States Ski Association (USSA) teams and those who did not, the competition in New England creates a more equal and well-rounded field.

Seitz also competes for the Wachusett USSA Ski Team, which practices five days a week and competes on weekends all over the northeast. He competed for four years on a similar team while living in Minnesota, where he spent four nights a week training.

Dry-land training starts in September and racing continues through March. As any athlete finds, keeping up with studies can prove quite challenging. Dusty manages to work around his training, and when necessary he takes a day off to complete large assignments.

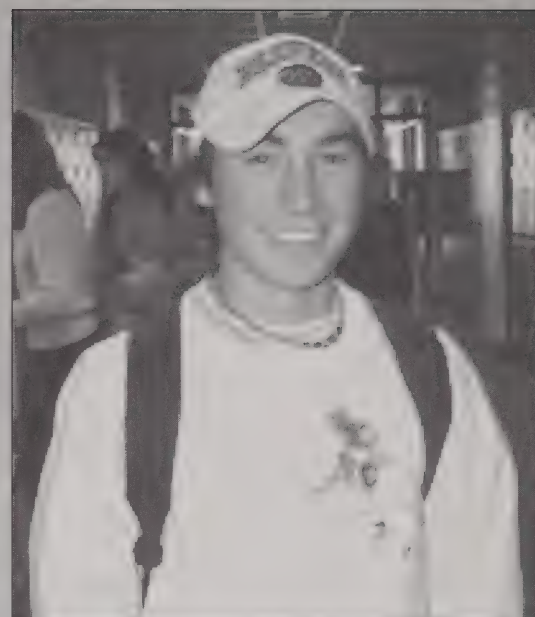

His greatest accomplishments thus far include a state title with his previous high school team and a trip to the Junior Olympics. He hopes to continue skiing in the future. Ultimately he has his eyes set on a scholarship and possibly a career in the sport.

Seitz's decision to concentrate on skiing was motivated in part by his dislike of being tossed around in ice hockey as a youth. Although he found the initial transition to L-S difficult, Seitz says he now loves the school and has made some strong friendships.

If Dustin Seitz can continue to dominate the slopes, he could carry the L-S Ski Team to a state championship in future seasons.

Frosh gymnast vaults over injuries to regional titles

Although many of us are not aware of it, a state and regional gymnastics champion is a freshman here at Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School. Sarrie Rubin has been participating in gymnastics for 12 years, and spends a cumulative total of 24 hours a week at her gym, Gymnastics and More in Woburn.

Her only rest from gymnastics is Sunday, when she catches up on homework, plays soccer, and hangs out with her friends.

On a typical day she leaves for the gym right after school, then does not return until about ten in the evening. Her current coach is Mihai Brestyan, who previously coached the Israeli and Romanian National Teams for nearly twenty years.

Sarrie has held the State and New England - New York Regional titles for people in her age group for two years.

In her first year at the Regional Championship competition, she qualified for the Junior Olympic National Championships, which were to be held in Florida. She placed seventh at this competition and made the Junior Olympic National Team. She went to the Olympic training center in Colorado Springs, and then performed at the Fleet Center with the United States Mens and Women's Olympic Gymnastics teams.

Sarrie was progressing quickly when two injuries slowed her down. She underwent knee surgery, but she had convalesced just in time for the next year's Nationals. They were held in Seattle and she placed an outstanding fourth on the bars. Shortly after that, she had surgery on her foot, which was only a minor setback. After her third year at the Nationals, Sarrie reached the ranking of National elite. Only 100 gymnasts throughout the country are on an elite level, whether it is National elite or International elite.

She has competed at the US Challenge in New Jersey, and qualified for the National Gym Festival in New Jersey. Sarrie is one of only two Elite gymnasts in Massachusetts.

In January, Sarrie hopes to become an International Elite gymnast, and in November she qualified to go to an elite training camp at Bela Karoly's ranch. If this name sounds familiar, it is because he has coached Nadia Comaneci, Dominique Moceanu, Mary Lou Sarrie Rubin, the reigning Massachusetts and New England regional champion.

Retton, and Kerri Strug, all amazing gymnasts who have been to the Olympics and excelled. If Sarrie does become International Elite, she will compete against gymnasts from across the world, preparing her for the possibility of making the World team when she is 16, which is one of her goals.

All these accomplishments are even more significant since she is a freshman. Should Rubin continue to progress in the same way, her future is very bright.

Crisis in East Timor

Now a small independent nation located within the bounds of powerful Indonesia, East Timor was first colonized by Portugal 400 years ago. After being abruptly abandoned in 1975, East Timor was quickly seized by the Indonesian government. Under the control of Indonesia the Timorese population was mistreated, and economic progress was unheard of. Widespread repression swept through the tiny area causing tension to rise between the Timorese and the Indonesian occupiers. An estimated 200,000 Timorese were killed during this time by the oppressive Indonesian regime. The world slowly began to realize the injustices the Timorese felt, and Indonesia received a global reputation for human rights abuses.

In February 1999, after almost a quarter century of bloody rule without any sense of hope, former president Suharto's successor, B.J. Habib, announced that he would be willing to support the holding of a Timorese referendum concerning independence. Fighting broke out and intensified between separatist guerrillas and pro-Indonesian paramilitary forces as the day of the referendum drew closer. Unfortunately, because of this strife, the U.N.-sponsored referendum was rescheduled twice before actually taking place. Before the vote actually occurred there had been many threats and increased violence by the paramilitias to discourage voting.

When the referendum finally took place on August 30, 1999, there was an amazing voter turn out of almost 99%; the votes favoring secession from Indonesia totaled 78.5% of the Timorese population. Jakarta, the capital of Indonesia, then declared martial law in East Timor and more violence ensued. Paramilitias razed villages, raped women, looted, slaughtered the Timorese civilians, and drove an estimated one-third of the population to flee East Timor.

Habibi and the powerful head of the Indonesian military, General Wiranto, appeared helpless in stopping the massacre in East Timor, despite their constant assurance that Indonesia would restore order. Blame for the tragedy fell on many shoulders. The U.N. failed to make provisions to protect the Timorese after encouraging them to participate freely in democratic elections. The pro-Indonesian paramilitias who carried out the violence were trained and armed by the Indonesian military and then allowed to do as they pleased. After enormous international pressure, Indonesia allowed a haphazard peacekeeping force to occupy East Timor on September 12.

Australia led an international force that entered East Timor; the effort was driven by purely humanitarian and democratic motives. The international force quickly established and kept peace in the war-torn nation. However, it cannot be forgotten hat if they had arrived sooner, many lives could have been saved.

East Timor is now an independent nation and is slowly beginning the process of rebuilding. It is predicted that it will be another fifty years until every village, town, and city has achieved a new level of stability and prosperity.

Columbine Catastrophe

On April 20, 1999, high school students and Americans across the country saw that schools were no longer a safe haven for America's youth. Two students at Columbine High School in Littleton, CO, seniors Eric Harris and Dylan Klebold opened fire on their classmates, killing 12 students and one teacher and injuring many others before finally committing suicide themselves.

Harris and Klebold carefully planned the shooting and went to school equipped with bombs and guns. They opened fire during school and America saw the horrible event unfold on national television. The reaction was shock. Americans had never before seen such brutality and violence from teenagers, and as a result calls for stricter gun control laws have been made across the country.

The tragedy at Columbine is just one of many in the recent rash of high school shootings. Many have debated the causes of this violence, attributing the incidents to media, and the prevalence of violence in television and movies. Some blame today's culture. Whatever the cause may be, the fact remains that teenagers will not feel completely safe in high school for some time to come.

Campaign 2000

At least for a while, the 2000 presidential campaign rekindled interest in a political establishment from which the American people had been turned off by scandal and apathy.

Running on the Democratic side were Vice President Al Gore and former Senator Bill Bradley. Gore ran on a platform identical to that of his mentor President Bill Clinton, advocating policies preserving the current health care system and federal income tax, pushing gun control and Universal Savings Accounts. However, he was seen by many fellow party members as being too stiff to win an election, lacking Clinton's charisma. Also, many thought the numerous scandals of the Clinton administration had tainted Gore's integrity, foremost among which was the Vice President's indiscreet fund raiser at a Buddhist monastery.

The challenge fell before former Senator Bill Bradley, whose candidacy was at first greeted with much enthusiasm. He tried to capture Democrats disenchanted with Gore's overly moderate record, pushing for universal health care and stricter gun control. Gore quickly responded, retooling his image, revamping his wardrobe and his cabinet of advisors. Bradley's candidacy soon petered out and the media turned toward the more contentious Republican race.

For two years, Governor George W. Bush of Texas had been billed as a new type of Republican candidate, espousing a doctrine of "compassionate conservatism." Though he championed traditional conservative stances, like large tax cuts, anti-abortion, and school choice, he signified a more inclusive Republican party as he enjoyed great popularity among Latinos with his immigrant-friendly positions.

Challenging him was Senator John McCain of Arizona. Stumping on a platform founded on character and topped by his rather un-Republican campaign finance reform initiative, McCain vowed to clean up Washington. Touring the nation in his campaign bus "The Straight Talk Express," McCain endeavored to capture the hearts of moderates and independents.

While his comments endeared him to many left-leaning independents and liberals, McCain alienated the Christian Right with his caustic words, a seemingly self-defeating move. And as the winter melted into spring, Gore and Bush seemed the heirs apparent to their party's nominations.

American Beauty

American Beauty, released to theaters last summer, is a clever depiction of the deranged lives of a "typical" American nuclear family. Director Sam Mendes, who makes his screen debut with this film, creates a comical yet depressing and insightful film which illustrates how the apparently perfect suburban lifestyle is far from flawless.

Renowned actors Kevin Spacey and Annette Bening play the roles of Lester and Carolyn Burnham whose marriage has lost its flair. As the product of a dysfunctional household, their daughter Jane (played by Thora Birch) is a sulky, scowling, and desperate young woman. Lester is a corporate peon at a marketing magazine who, upon becoming infatuated with one of his daughter's friends, Angela (Mena Suvari), quits his job in a comical scene and makes it his only goal to sleep with this teenager. Meanwhile, his wife, a real estate agent, begins an affair with a local real estate king. His daughter forms an intimate relationship with the neighborhood freak who films everything in the hope of finding the lost beauty in the world around him. This young man's father appears to be a violently homophobic ex-Marine but turns out to be homosexual himself. Lester's "dream girl" turns out to be merely illusion, and he is pushed back into his pitiful, surface-deep life once again.

Echoing the theme of the great Russian novelist Leo Tolstoy, American Beauty tries and succeeds at pointing out that the most ordinary and insignificant lives are also the most terrible.

The Green Mile

Stephen King's 1996 novel comes to life in this winter's film The Green Mile. This movie, about 1930's death row prisoners in E Block of Louisiana's Cold Mountain Penitentiary, is an entertaining but typical film about the eventual triumph of good over evil.

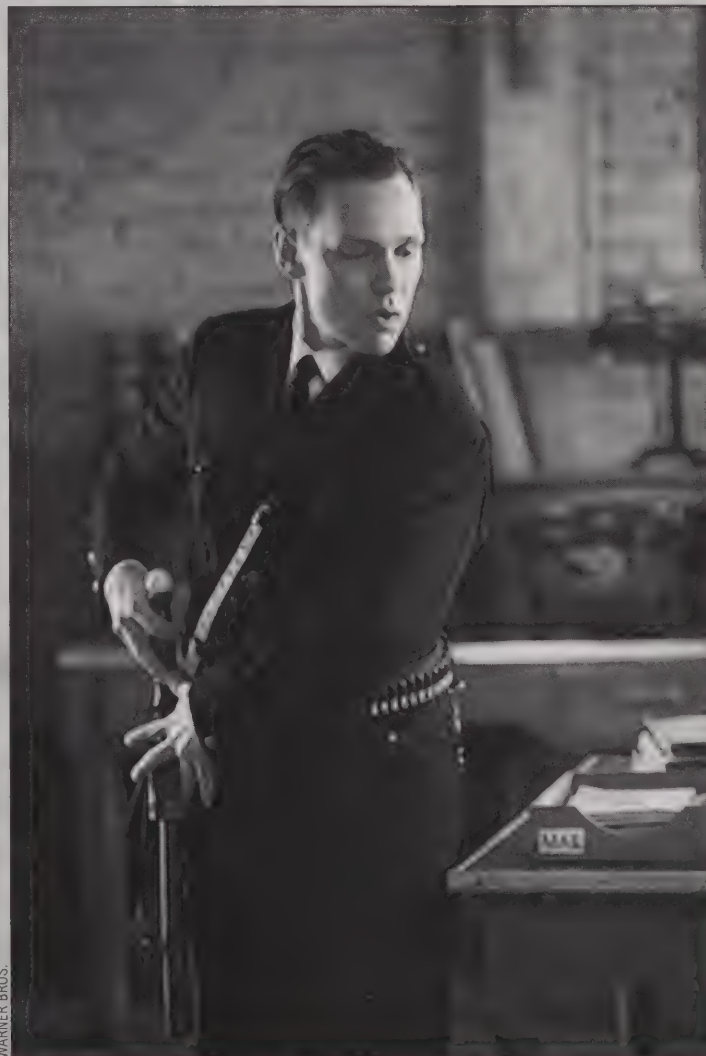

The movie's central character, Paul Edgecomb (played by Tom Hanks), is the superintendent of the block, the lime-colored floor of which gives the book and movie their names. Hank's squad is played by David Morse, Barry Pepper, Jeffrey DeMunn, and Doug Hutchison who plays Percy Morse, the governor's nephew and an annoying and immature youth whose chief enjoyment is taunting and abusing the prisoners. The film's supernatural twist comes from the character of John Coffey (played by Michael Clarke Duncan), a large and docile black man who has been convicted of (but is not actually guilty of) the rape and murder of two twin girls. Coffey wins over Edgecomb when he cures him of a painful urinary tract infection, squeezing out the pain with his hands and releasing it through his mouth as a bunch of soot-colored insects. Similar such miracles are plentiful in the film.

The Green Mile includes several disturbing depictions of deaths by electrocution, including one in which Percy Morse intentionally botches the procedure in order to see the inmate suffer. Through the distinctions drawn between Morse and Coffey among others, The Green Mile illustrates the all-too-familiar theme of good eventually triumphing over evil.

Superbowl XXXIV

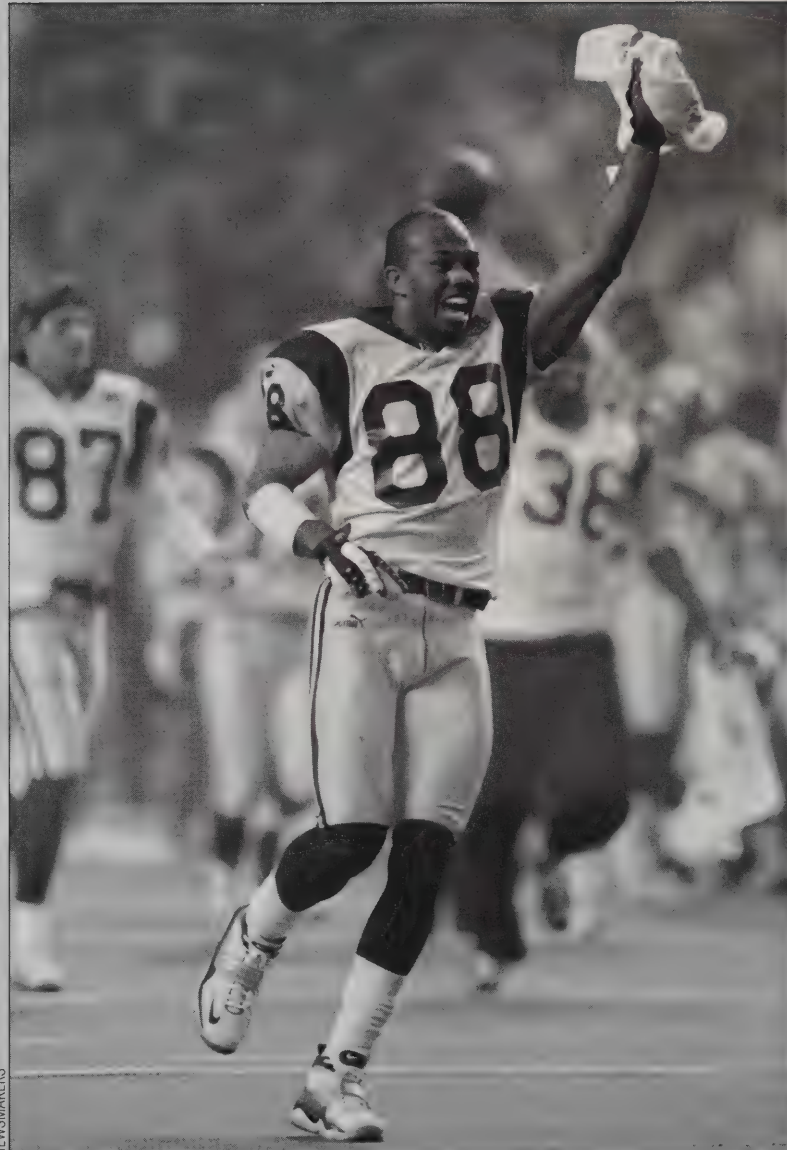

On January 30, 2000, millions gathered to watch Superbowl XXXIV. The St. Louis Rams took on the Tennessee Titans in Atlanta, Georgia. Both teams were making their first Superbowl appearances in years, and the match proved to be an exciting one.

A crowd of 72,625 people gathered in the Georgia Dome to be part of the 23-16 Rams victory. Rams' quarterback Kurt Warner threw a Super Bowl record of 414 yards and contributed two touchdowns.

The Rams dominated early in the game, with a lead of 16-0, however, they let the Titans tie the game. With 1:54 left in the game, Warner made a 73 yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Isaac Bruce to break the 16-16 tie.

But the game was not over yet. With 1:48 left to play, Tennessee was on their own 10 yard line. Quarterback Steve McNair barely avoided a sack and managed a 16 yard pass to Kevin Dyson. With five seconds and one time-out left, the Titans had moved the football to the Rams' 10 yard line. After using the final time-out, McNair fired the ball back to Dyson, who came within one yard of tying up the game and bringing the Super Bowl into overtime.

World Series 1999

Many were disappointed when the New York Yankees ran past the Atlanta Braves in four consecutive games to win the 1999 World Series championship, securing their third win of the decade. Few were surprised.

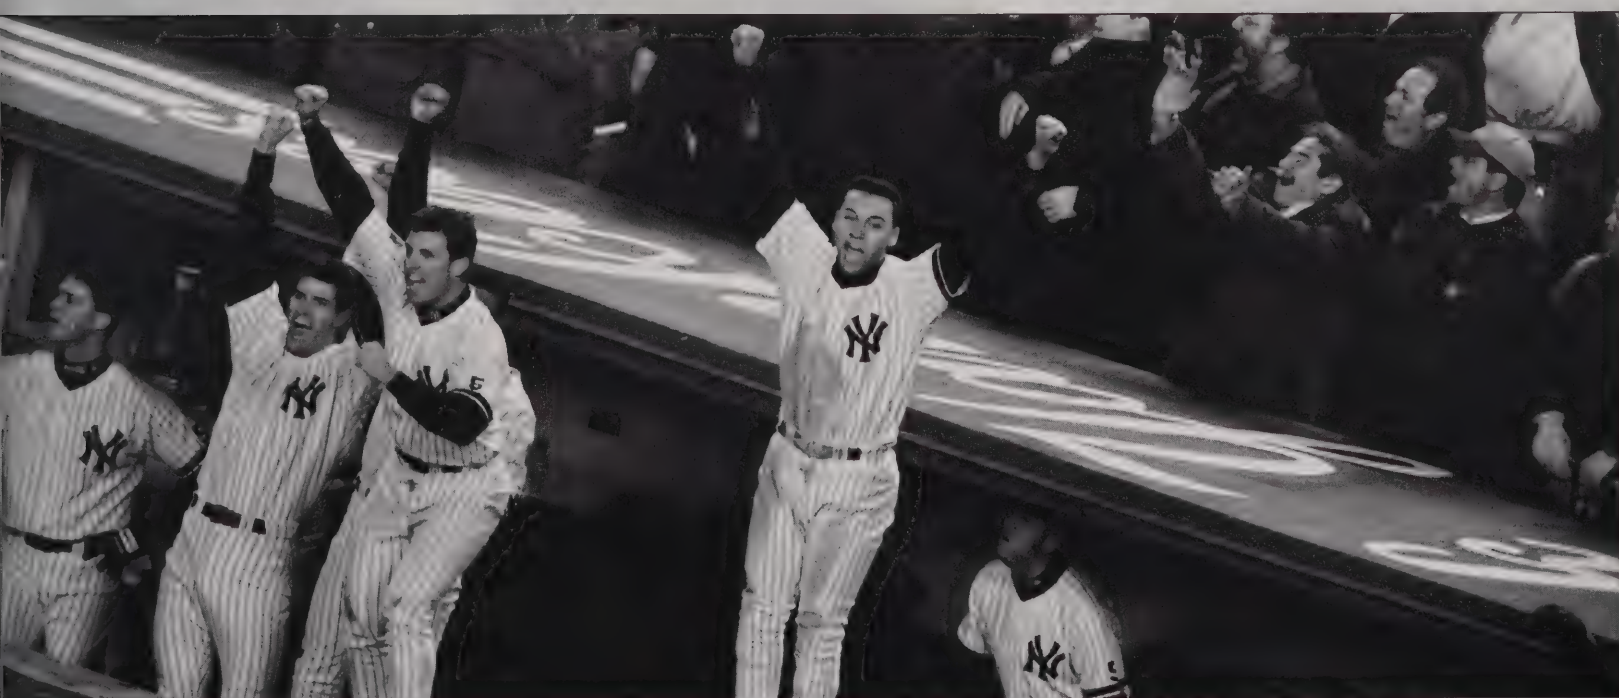

In honor of their victory, New York City Mayor Rudy Giuliani held the classic New York ticker tape parade followed by a ceremony at City Hall. New York has officially named the Yankees the team of the millennium, with twenty-five World Series championships in over a century of Major League Baseball. The St. Louis Cardinals took a distant second with only nine championships.

Pitcher Roger Clemens gave an outstanding performance, allowing only one run and four hits in seven and two-thirds innings. His hard work and efforts paid off to win him his first World Series victory and a 1999 World Series ring. He said shortly after the final game, "I feel very blessed to be a part of this team...it was wonderful to play with them. Tonight I felt what it was like to be a Yankee for sure."

Y2K Fears

For the past five years, the world has been in a panic over a seemingly insignificant oversight known as the Y2K bug. It seems, however, that the time and money spent to remedy the situation has paid off.

The glitch, caused by early computer programmers using only two characters to record years (67 instead of 1967, for example), was originally intended to conserve drive space, a valuable commodity at the time. Some developers, who were aware of the potential problem from the start, dismissed the bug, claiming that their software would be replaced well before the turn of the millennium. They were wrong. Millions of dollars have been spent trying to upgrade corporate systems, airplanes, and military installations to handle the rollover smoothly. Companies that wrote software to be "Y2K compliant" from the beginning have thus had a major competitive advantage in the past few years.

Fear of the problems potentially caused by the bug caused many to cancel airline reservations and New Year's plans. Some even stockpiled food and other essential supplies—as if a tornado were imminent—in shelters.

The year 2000 arrived virtually without a hitch. Most were relieved, but those who anticipated chaos were somewhat dismayed. No airplanes were reported to fail, and the stock market was stable the next business day. There were sporadic problems, however. For example, a Japanese nuclear power plant reported a radiation alarm system failure. It was restored shortly afterward without any danger of a radiation leak.

While January 1 was the largest concern, February 29 (the year 2000 Leap Day), April 1, and January 1, 2001 are also predicted to be potential problems. For now, however, they seem to have been resolved.

Hubble Telescope

On November 13, 1999, the Hubble telescope became inoperative when the fourth of six gyroscopes failed. The telescope required three operating gyroscopes to correctly aim at celestial objects. According to John Campbell, the telescope's project manager at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md, "The gyroscopes on Hubble are the most accurate ever built. Without them, stars would just be fuzzy points of light." To remedy the problem, NASA scheduled Hubble Servicing Mission 3A in December 1999. The shuttle was launched on December 19, behind schedule due to unfavorable weather. NASA decided to shorten the mission rather than ending it later, as they did not want to have a space shuttle in flight when Y2K rolled around.

The astronauts went on three spacewalks during the mission. On the first spacewalk, astronauts Steve Smith and John Grunsfeld checked the makeshift insulation blankets that were installed in 1997 when the crew of the last servicing mission discovered tattered areas on Hubble's exterior. Then, they began the service, replacing all six of the telescope's gyroscopes. After replacing them, the astronauts opened valves to release gas built up inside a device that detects infrared light. With the valves open, the astronauts installed battery improvement kits which will prevent the batteries from overheating when they are being charged.

During the second spacewalk, astronauts Mike Foale and Claude Nicollier installed a new fine guidance system. This device keeps the Hubble aimed precisely at the objects that it is photographing, preventing blurry pictures. Also replaced was Hubble's main computer, a "1970s-vintage computer" which had been running the telescope since its launch in 1990.

On the third and final spacewalk, Smith and Grunsfeld installed optical control electronics to aid the fine guidance system in keeping the telescope steady. They then installed a new radio transmitter, replacing the old one which had broken. After that, they installed a solid-state recording device, replacing the reel-to-reel tape recorder. They finished the spacewalk by installing insulation on the outside of the telescope and preparing the cargo bay of the shuttle for landing.

On December 25, the telescope was released from the shuttle. The astronauts had completed all of the major servicing objectives of the mission. The shuttle landed at Kennedy Space Center at 7:00 PM on December 27. In January, the first pictures taken from the Hubble after the completion of the mission showed that the mission was successful.

MCAS Round Two

The Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School class of 2001 showed significant improvement on the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System (MCAS) tests over the class of 2000's results. The cumulative average for English, math, and science tests at L-S was 720, the tenth highest in the state, according to The Boston Globe.

Last year, L-S was 46th in the state, far lower than similar schools such as Acton-Boxborough and Wayland, which both scored in the top ten. This year A-B's cumulative average was 727 ranking fifth in the state, while Wayland's average was 718 ranking 11th.

Of the three tests, the math exam showed both the highest percentage of students failing, 22 percent, and the highest percentage of students in the "Advanced" category, 29 percent. L-S's failure rate in math is similar to that of comparable schools statewide.

"It concerns me that statewide math has such a high failing rate, as compared to English or science. However, the class that I am really concerned with is this year's freshman class [who will need to pass the MCAS tests to graduate]," says math department coordinator Betsey Wood.

She added that improved scores may be attributed to the fact that, "the testing conditions were much better last year, they were taken more seriously and teachers were involved in the proctoring. Students were also asked to bring books and stay for the entire exam which eliminated some of the disruption."

Science and technology scores showed the least improvement, with 14 percent failing, 42 percent rated as "Needs Improvement," 39 percent rated as "Proficient," and five percent rated as "Advanced." These scores showed a one to four percent improvement over last year's scores.

English scores showed an eight percent increase in students in the "Proficient" category and a two percent improvement in those of the "Advanced" category, while the percentage of students failing remained constant at 12 percent.

"We hoped we could make the MCAS scores more of a reflection of the student body and the L-S curriculum. We wanted to do it without disturbing the curriculum because we have faith in it. We don't want to teach to the test especially because we think what we do is substantial," said English department chair Judy Plott.

Many tenth graders last year practiced in-class essays for the English exams, however, this was also to prepare students for the Advanced Placement exams, SATs, and college applications, according to Plott. Many English teachers also worked with sophomores to expand their literary vocabulary. Plott added that a difference between the 1998 and 1999 tests was the essay question, which she felt was much improved.

One issue of concern cited by Superintendent/Principal John Ritchie was the number of students in the failing categories who scored in the lowest possible range between 200 and 203 points.

Of 62 students who failed the math exam, 27 fell into this category. Similarly, 13 of 41 students who failed the science exam had scores in this range. Seventeen out of 33 students who failed the English test scored between 200 and 203.

"I think people took the tests more seriously this past year and tried harder. I am skeptical of the tendency—one which I find myself having to resist—of making too much of these scores, or falling into the trap of comparing ourselves with, and competing with, other schools," added Ritchie. "We need to look at our own scores, make reasoned judgments, ask good questions, and decide what we want to improve, how we want to respond."

L-S Reconstruction

By a six to three majority, the Lincoln-Sudbury Building Committee voted on January 10, to rebuild L-S.

For over a year, the Building Committee, in collaboration with the School Committee, has been discussing a plan to renovate the 45 year-old Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School.

After a very selective interview process, the Building Committee hired the Michael Rosenfeld Architecture firm to design a renovation plan. However, after analyzing advantages and disadvantages and comparing costs between renovating or rebuilding a new school, the decision was made to support rebuilding.

This decision was largely influenced by the small difference in costs between the two proposals, according to Jim Newton, Building Committee member. When renovating a building, it is hard to accurately estimate a cost because many unseen problems may arise once construction begins. Also, renovating will frequently interrupt students' education, because of the noise and the frequent relocations of classrooms and various activities .

Those who voted against rebuilding are concerned with the accuracy of the estimated costs. Some feel unhappy that the murals and courtyards which contribute to L-S' unique atmosphere cannot be preserved or incorporated into the new design, and will be lost.

In both cases, student parking will be temporarily suspended to make space for teacher parking and construction equipment.

The Building Committee was created to direct the architects and advise the School Committee. No decisions or designs chosen by the Building Committee are final because the School Committee holds veto power over all proposals.

Lincoln and Sudbury citizens will not be presented with final plans or be able to vote on them until the fall of 2000, according to Newton. He also estimates that construction, either renovation or rebuilding, will not begin until April 2001.

What's Hot in 2000?

Pokémon

This year's version of the Furby and Tickle-Me-Elmo dolls was Nintendo's Pokémon, a sickeningly cute collection of creatures which all but monopolized Christmas 1999 sales. First there was the video game, followed by the television show, the cards, the toys, the t-shirts, the toothbrushes and then the movie, which went straight to number one. Children (and some adults) became so addicted to Pokémon that police began hearing of Pokémon-driven theft and assault incidents as well as an all-Pokémon black market, complete with counterfeiting rings. As quickly the craze spread, however, Pikachu's popularity will soon become a thing of the past.

During the 1999 holiday season, Nintendo's Pokémon paraphernalia easily sold more than any other toy. The craze is not currently what it was in December, but it is still a hot market.

Millionaire Game Shows

Regis Philbin (right) poses a question to a contestant. The popularity of "Who Wants to be a Millionaire?" has inspired rival networks to create similar shows.

Originally a British phenomenon, ABC's "Who Wants to be a Millionaire" game show, featuring Regis Philbin, has become a viewer magnet in America and the rest of the world. Of course, competing networks, like 21st Century Fox, have created clone game shows to grab some viewers from ABC. Perhaps the most blatant imitation of the show is "Twenty-One," hosted by Maury Povich (no offense Maury, but there is nothing original about the second millionaire game show run by a talk-show host). In any event, these shows have remained popular since their American debut.

G4

Apple Computer's new Power Macintosh G4 system has taken the computer industry by storm. Advertising an overall 220% processing advantage over the leading Pentium III models, Apple Computer has climbed further out of the financial disaster it faced three years ago. The new computer features a silver and gray design, which isn't as hideous as the previous Yosemite Blue and White G3 models. Additionally, high-end models include a flat screen cinema display and a re-writable DVD drive. While the company has not yet gained a market share sizable enough to seriously threaten its primary competitor, Microsoft, it has reestablished its place in the industry.

The Blair Witch Project

Eduardo Sanshez and Daniel Myrick, the producers of the highly unexpected Blair Witch Project film.

Eduardo Sanshez and Daniel Myrick's horror film was an unprecedented and unexpected summer hit in 1999. Its alternative use of hand-held video equipment, lighting, and camera angles enabled the film to produce striking images without glamorous celebrities or state-of-the-art special effects. Most impressive was the fact that the two used almost no money in comparison to current Hollywood films. In addition, its advertising campaign has uprooted conventional cinema promotions by using the internet to create hype.

Star Wars

A full 20 years after the release of the first Star Wars movie, "Episode I: The Phantom Menace," appeared in theaters. Die-hard fans slept in ticket lines, and some truly religious followers spent weeks outside in line. Opening day in some theaters resembled a costume party more than a movie debut. The film raked in more revenue than any of the other Star Wars movies, enhanced by a plethora of action figures, plastic light sabers, and Darth Maul costume kits. The sequel is expected to open in theaters in 2002.

Religious Star Wars fans gather in ticket lines to spend days and even weeks waiting to be one of the first to see the new prequel.

Online Auctions

Today, it seems that everything can be purchased on the internet: houses, cars, and even multi-million dollar web domains. Most surprising, however, is that they are all available on internet auction sites like eBay and Yahoo! Auctions. On any given day, eBay offers more than four million auctions and receives over 1.5 billion web hits per month. Bizarre commodities such as Seattle riot souvenirs and access to internet game accounts have made advertisements for cow-shaped ashtrays (eBay item 286409578, for short) commonplace.

Harry Potter

In what seemed to be overnight, J.K. Rowling's Harry Potter children's books series became a worldwide youth fad. To date, millions of copies of her books have been sold in over 100 countries. Some parents and school districts, dubious about the book's glorification of witchcraft and evil, have expressed concern, but kids find the 14-year-old Harry and his adventures cool. Although the books have been controversial, they are no different than "Bewitched" in the 60's and "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" in the past few years.

•1206 The leader of the Mongol tribes, Temujin, was renamed Genghis Khan or "greatest of all rulers." He extended Mongol rule into Russia and the Middle East.

•1215 The Magna Carta was signed by King John of England on June 15. This formed the basis of Constitutional government and outlined the rights of citizens.

•1231 The Inquisition began. During the Middle Ages, all Christians were part of one Church. People feared that dissenters' ideas would infect others. Pope Gregory IV initiated the Inquisition in which the Church sought out heresy, killing and torturing many.

•1271 Marco Polo travelled to China for 17 years but was not permitted to leave until he agreed to escort a Mongol princess to Persia. While he was imprisoned in Venice he dictated "Il milione" ("The Travels of Marco Polo"). His legacy includes opening trade and sparking interest in new areas of the world.

•1274 The Mongols invaded and almost conquered Japan. In 1281, they returned with a fleet of 140,000 men, the largest naval force until that date. Japan was saved by a typhoon which destroyed much of the Mongol fleet. They believed that a "kamikaze" or "divine wind" had come to their assistance.

•1310 Dante's Divine Comedy was written.

•1325 Tenochtitlán was founded by the Aztec tribe of Central America. It would later grow to become the premier city of the pre-Columbian Americas. It is now Mexico City.

•1337-1453 The Hundred Years War was fought. This war ravaged much of Europe.

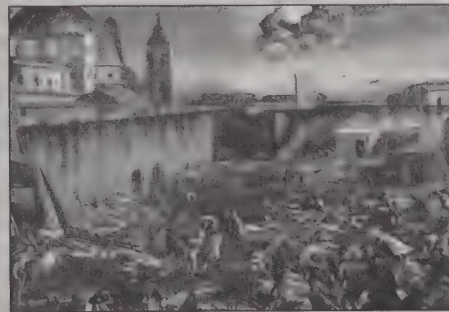

•1347-1350 The Bubonic Plague, popularly known as the Black Death ravaged Europe. The terribly lethal disease decimated the population.

•1350 Boccaccio's Decameron was written. This helped to develop literature, steering it towards modern forms.

•1381 In England, the peasants revolted, demonstrating the poor conditions faced by the peasant class.

•1390 Chaucer's Canterbury Tales was written.

•1429 Joan of Arc, a French peasant, sought out the French leaders and discussed her mission to drive the English out of France. She took control of the French forces and liberated much of central France. In 1430, she was captured. She was accused of witchcraft and of heresy and was burned in the city of Rouen.

•1453 Charles VII ended the Hundred Years' War with the capture of Bordeaux, defeating the English King Henry VI with the help of the withdrawal of Burgandy from an English alliance. The French monarchy resumed the practice of collecting national taxes and of maintaining a standing army in times of peace. The monarchy strengthened yet further during the reigns of Louis XI (1461-1483) and Louis XII (1498-1515).

•1455 Henry VI of England (1422-1461) began the Wars of the Roses. The two sides of the war were the red rose (Henry's family, the House of Lancaster) and the white rose (the House of York). Yorkist Richard III briefly triumphed and gained the kingship. In 1485, the Wars of the Roses ended. Henry VII assumed the throne and ruled for twenty-four years. He reestablished royal power over the aristocracy, ceased funding of foreign wars and reformed finances. Parliament also began to be a regular part of government.

•1492 Ferdinand and Isabella gained control of Granada and sought overseas expansion as patron of Christopher Columbus and other explorers. The flow of gold and silver through Spain from the New World, the conquest of Mexico and Peru, and victory in battle helped to make Spain the strongest nation in Europe.

•1509 Henry VIII became king of England. During his rule, he split with the Papacy and founded the Church of England.

•1513 Juan Ponce DeLeon established the 1st colony in what is now the United States, located in St. Augustine, Florida.

•1513 Michaelangelo finished his painting of the Sistine Chapel. It took him four years of lying on his back to finish his complex and vast design. The ceiling is a depiction of God's creation of the world.

Luther criticizes the Church

•1517 Martin Luther wrote his 95 theses criticizing the Catholic Church, thereby beginning a religious movement against Catholicism known as the Protestant Reformation.

•1526 The Mughals, the last of the Islamic invaders of India, began with the conquest of Dehli.

•1532 Machiavelli wrote the sinister political strategy handbook The Prince.

•1543 Copernicus published his idea that the earth revolves around the sun. This theory was met with protest from contemporary scientists and the church, which believed in the geocentric theory that the sun rotates about the earth.

•1553 Mary I ("Bloody Mary") began her five year rule of England. She executed hundreds of Protestants in an attempt to reconvert England to Catholicism.

•1750 The Industrial Revolution began, resulting in a change to a factory-based system of production. This was possible because of property rights acquired by people and because of new water-, steam-, and wind-powered machinery. The Industrial Revolution is an ongoing process which continues today.

•1750 Encyclopédie was written by the French Philosophes, the scholars of the Enlightenment. It consisted of 17 volumes and covered all branches of knowledge. Rational thought was emphasized in all aspects of life, and hence it was condemned by the Church.

•1756 The Seven Years' War between England and France began in 1756 and lasted until 1763. It eventually expanded to include all the major powers of Europe and their colonies. In the end, little change resulted in the power balance of Europe, but in North America England won Canada and the land west of the Mississippi from France.

•1764 Bostonians denounced the British Sugar and Currency Acts, labeling them as "taxation without representation." The implementation of the Stamp Act in 1765 marked the first major controversy between Great Britain and the United States and brought the War for Independence closer to fruition.

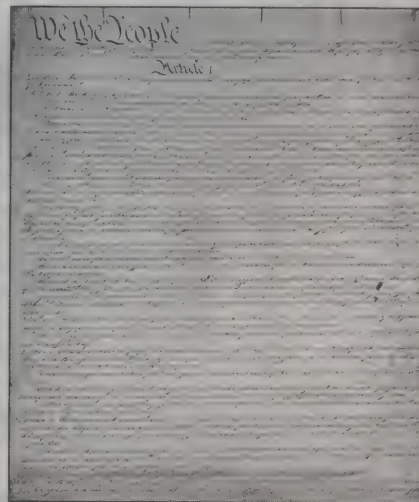

•1775 British troops and the Colonial militia clashed at Lexington and Concord, starting the "American Revolution." The Continental Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence in 1776. In 1783, Congress proclaimed an end to the Revolution.

•1779 Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart wrote his first opera, "Idomeneo." He was an incredible musical genius whose accomplishments included performing at the Imperial Court in Vienna at age 5 and writing his first symphonies by age 10.

•1787 The United States Constitution was drafted in Philadelphia by the Constitutional Convention. It established the government we still possess today. The procedures it outlined were large

19th Century

1803 The United States purchased the Louisiana territory from France on April 30, 1803, for a sum of about fifteen million dollars. This purchase, encompassing more than eight-hundred thousand square miles of land, granted the United States the territory extending from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains, virtually doubling the size of the country.

1814-15 Napoleon Bonaparte, who had seized political power in France in 1799 and who had extended French rule over vast portions of Europe, was defeated at Waterloo.

1839-42 & 1856-60 The Opium Wars were the first major clashes between the West and China; China was defeated in both. These conflicts, instigated by Chinese objections to British opium imports, ended Chinese isolation and began a period of humiliation by international powers.

1848 The Communist Manifesto was written by Karl Marx in association with Friedrich Engels. His work, which depicts Marx's view that history has been marked by strife amongst economic classes, is one of the most important documents of Marxism and of modern Communism.

1848 Gold was discovered at Sutter's Mill in California. This find sparked the greatest gold rush in American history. In 1849, the rush reached a global level when many "Forty-niners" migrated to California in search of fortune.

1848 The Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo ended the Mexican-American War. Through this treaty, the United States greatly extended its land and power; it acquired Texas, New Mexico, and California (the modern-day states of California, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, most of Arizona, and parts of Colorado and Wyoming) while only paying fifteen million dollars to Mexico.

1854 Matthew Calbraith Perry, an American naval officer, led a mission into Japan in order to negotiate a treaty to protect shipwrecked American seamen in Japan and to expand United States commerce. Japan agreed to these provisions and this began the end of Japanese isolation.

• 1859 Charles Darwin, a British naturalist, published On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection. Using observations acquired during an 1831-36 voyage on the H.M.S. Beagle, he proposed that species evolve from more primitive species based on a principle he called natural selection.

• 1861-65 Civil War raged throughout the United States. The Union (North) managed to quell the rebellious Confederacy

The "evolutionary" Charles Darwin

(South), ending slavery as well. Slavery was abolished, and Constitutional amendments began the process of providing rights to African-Americans, a process that would not end until a century later.

• 1896 Homer Plessy of Louisiana requested that the Supreme Court overturn a law requiring separate railroad cars for white and "colored" passengers. The Court upheld the law in the case known as Plessy v. Ferguson, establishing a precedent of "separate but equal" which lasted until 1954.

Bonjourno!

What up dude? You are finally done! It's hard to believe that you've completed the triumvirate of the fam at L-S! Throughout the years, from Sunny Hill to college, you have always been there for us, as much as we have been there for you. Although our support for you is unconditional, you don't need any help because you will succeed in whatever you choose to do. Growing up together we've shared good times and bad, (as well as a keen fashion sense, see pics) all helping to mold you into the amazing person you have become. So Beavis, just remember that aside from being my really cool sister, you are one of the most outstanding people that I have ever known. So keep on making me proud, rock on in the free world, and I'll catch you on the flip side!

Love,
Rex and Beefy

Congratulations Katie

You bring a steady, determined and creative touch to all your endeavors. We have enjoyed watching you grow and mature so gracefully, and are confident in your ability to meet future challenges.

The Castle-Builder
by Henry W. Longfellow
(adaptation by Carol Schroeder)

A gentle girl, with soft and silken locks,
A dreamy girl, with hazel and tender eyes,
A castle-builder, with her wooden blocks,
And towers that touch imaginary skies.

A fearless rider on her father's knee,
An eager listener unto stories told
At the Round Table of the nursery,
Of heroes and adventures manifold.

There will be other towers for thee to build;
There will be other steeds for thee to ride;
There will be other legends, and all filled
With greater marvels and more glorified.

Build on, and make thy castles high and fair,
Rising and reaching upward to the skies;
Listen to voices in the upper air,
Nor lose thy simple faith in mysteries.

Congratulations, Michael!!!

"The soul is dyed the color of its thoughts. Think only on those things that are in line with your principles and can bear the full light of day. The content of your character is your choice. Day by day, what you choose, what you think, and what you do is who you become. Your integrity is your destiny ... it is the light that guides your way."

*If I could, I'd protect you from the sadness in your eyes
Give you courage in a world of compromise
Yes I would.
If I could, I would teach you all the things I never

And I'd help you cross the bridges that I've burned
Yes I would.
If I could, I would help you make it through the hungry years
But I know that I could never cry your tears
But I would, if I could.
And if I knew
I'd have tried to change the world that I brought you to
But there isn't very much that I can do
But I would, if I could
If I could, I would try to shield your innocence from

But the part of life I gave you isn't mine
I've watched you grow, so I could let you go.*

Chris:

It has been a long 18 years, but I wouldn't want to have shared them with anyone else. I have especially enjoyed getting to know the woman who you have become in the last few years and I hope we will continue to grow closer in the years to come. You have so much to be proud of and so much more to offer the world; be true to yourself and don't let others keep you from your dreams. What lies before you are tiny matters compared to what lies within you. Whatever life has in store for you, know that I love you and will always be there for you.

Maggie-
I cannot dream of a better big sister than you. All the simple moments: creating shows for mom & dad, sharing meaningless stories, and even bothering each other, have built up into a relationship I truly cherish. Through your leadership, support, & love, you have taught me to be strong in everything I pursue. Because of these and many more positive qualities you possess, I know you will bring success with you wherever life may take you. I love you so much!

Love,

Dear Nick,

You have always been unique. When you were a baby it seemed you had a mind of your own ... and then you began to talk and it became obvious you also had an opinion of your own ... informed by your own unique perspective.

You were the child who challenged all the conventions. You would never take the easy road, the tried and true road, you would rather bushwhack a new path, fiercely loyal to your own vision ... and yet there is that soft side of you that those who really know you love, that big tender heart of gold. As a child you loved and nurtured your cherished stuffed animals as if they were your children. Any child younger than you became the object of your concern, patience and indulgence, and they loved you for it. Even then one could see that you had a capacity for tenderness that was unique.

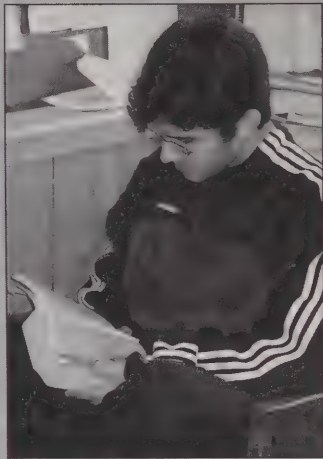

That determined little boy has grown into a fine young man of strong convictions who is kind, gentle, and affectionate and still does things his own way. The future will hold for you whatever you want it to, you are very capable and well prepared, you just have to go after it with gusto. You have many special qualities and many gifts to share, more than you know. Live, love, laugh and be happy. We will always be here for you.

We are very proud of you!

A Wish for Ari:

*If we could have one wish to last forever,
We'd close our eyes and make that wish for you:
May nothing harm you, precious son, not ever,
May all the dreams you dream, in time, come true.*

*If we could turn back time for just a while ...
We'd find that boy with mischief in his eye,
With light brown curls, a million-dollar smile,
A great, big heart for such a little guy.*

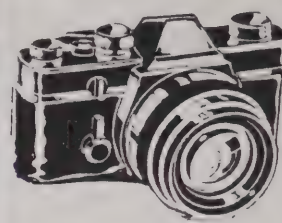

*A boy whose mind was constantly exploring,
From prehistoric times to outer space;
A wiz at math, with quite a knack for drawing,
There's curiosity upon his face.*

*A young adult of character and virtue,
Of quiet self-assuredness and pride;
And even if, at times, your dreams desert you,
You'll always have that strength you hold inside.*

*If we could somehow pave the road that calls you
With all the warmth and sweetness of today,
The future would most certainly enthrall you,
But we're afraid life doesn't work that way.*

*If parents are to nurture and to nourish,
Our jobs are very close to being done;
We're always here for you, now grow and flourish,
Because today you are a man, dear son.*

I will always cherish the many memories. From soccer fields to football fields, from Noyes to L-S, you have never given less than 100%. You are honest, kind and compassionate, and have surrounded yourself with wonderful friends. Your wit has kept us smiling. You are truly a wonderful human being who has always questioned everything. As you go on to college, continue to do so. Never take anything for granted. Try and continue to be the best that you can be. And remember, I am always here for you. I am very proud of you and love you with all my heart.

XXX OOO

Baby Brother,

You had just turned six when you asked me if you were my best friend. My answer was "not quite." I wonder if I knew then how much your friendship would mean to me twelve years later. Kirk, I would be lost today had I not had you by my side for as long as I can remember (who would have shared the "guilt" for breaking the thermostat?) I love you and admire the strength you've always held. Always look forward, but keep your night's dreams filled with made-up ball games, pickles, tuba-men, walkie-talkie telephones, and playing George Washington in the dinghys on the Cape. Love Always,

The petals unfurl, the flower blooms.

How can it be that this time has come so soon?

For your kindness and sense of fair play for all people,

For your unerring moral compass,

For the support you have given during the darkest hours,

For the faith you have in your family and yourself,

For your intractable stubbornness, (that cuts both ways),

For the person that you have become and continue to be,

We love you, cherish you, and keep you with us always,

Know that you will forever Remain

"The seasons touch us as we go
Like special friends we come to know
Like special friends who leave someday
And we not knowing what to say.
But in their leaving left behind
Precious moments for us to find
Crystal moments etched in the heart
Though time and space keep us apart."

Thank you Mom and Dad for all of your support. Alison and Heather, thanks for paving the way and being my examples. I love you. To my friends, what can I say? Thank you for being there through everything and for the memories. Field Hockey '99- BOOM BOOM BOOM! It was crazy. Thanks for the laughs girls. There's something about being crazy enough to run that brings people together. Thanks to my track buddies, I never would have made it without you ... and Amy- Who would have guessed it would take 6 years to find the music room? ... Just wait and see. I love you.

Amy Berenson

Those are a Success who have lived well, laughed often and loved much;
who have gained the respect of intelligent people and the love of children;
who have filled their niche and accomplished their task;
who leave the world better than they have found it,
whether by a perfect poem or a rescued soul;
who never lacked appreciation of the earth's beauty or failed to express it;
who looked for the best in others and gave the best they had.
Bessie Anderson Stanley, 1904
LSDT, Workout Barbie, Amnesty, WASTY
Sonia- just simply being there from 5th grade on, CJ just 20 minutes more...my locker or your locker??? senior lights flashing at us, you might have been a bad influence, but you made it fun. Liz- from lemonade stands to prom dress shopping, we have enough memories to last a lifetime. RT, you got me through history, LB+AB+ST=promprep, friends who have been there and will be there. Emily, we will go to Europe, Best Wishes to the class of 2000.
I never knew I'd gain so much, I'd have to leave behind.

What have you been waiting for all year long? "To kick your ..." or as we say in Greek "Drop your ..." "Comedy Club" (AL, HC, JP, TR, Mr. O) keep your humor alive and remember "Mates" to never forget the founder. Thank you to all my teachers who taught me something and those who taught me too much. All my friends keep in touch. I will never forget the times at LS, and the parties on the weekend. I cannot wait for college, but I will still miss LS. To all the rippers and crew keep intimidating and keep in touch. Matt Spinek remember Sudbury Pizza put all its turkey away. Matt Guanci, I still want to see the cartoon about me called "Berko's World" and remember I get 50% of the profits. I will remember my three club for golf, and shoot a free throw when I play basketball. Everyone good luck next year at whatever you are doing, from college or work or back at LS. So long.

Kimberly Brown

It's funny half the time I didn't want to deal with y'all. Now I do know what I'm gonna do without you! To all the people who have made my life awesome and difficult: Crystal (salty), Caroline, Heather, TCMoe, SHELLY, Jody, Debbie, Meagan, Justyna, Lisa, Ste Duetsch, Giselle, Brittany, LtCoolata and Reeves... Thanx for Wendy football games and Applebee's...Mike, Brian, and yes, even the Big Kristen(Losa!)-Stay cool! Matt-Thank you for being the friend that you are. Angela- I smile and laugh because you make me. I love you. Becl You and me and homework, don't forget. I love you, you're my best friend forever and always. Dan-You my Bro. I love you kiddo and I will always be there to back you up. Mom-Thank you. Daddy-I love you. Thank you both. Jeff P.-You will always be hot! And the most depressing news: Ripper hunting is officially over. Sorry! L-S Gi hockey best A-B, 1-0 (#10!) Peace Out. (Who got played!?! Always Smile!

Crystal Foti

Well guys I have to say the past 4 years have been great! You've all given me so many memories and I know I've given you more than enough crazy things to remember! Remember all the stupid things I've done to make you laugh, while making a fool out of myself! Pretty crazy! Always remember our ski trip Jr. year, cha-cha, muscles, busty, Wendy's blocks 1+4, salty, straws, Mustangs, Applebee's after the football games every Friday night, and many more! I could go on 4-ever with my LONG stories! Good luck to the cheerleaders next year! The weirdo has retired! It was definitely a season to remember for many reasons! Tiff, I don't know what I'm gonna do w/out you! You're always been there 4 me! "Yesterday brought the beginning and tomorrow brings the end, and somewhere in the middle we became the Best of Friends." I want to thank you 4 everything, you are the true meaning of a best friend. I'm gonna miss you! "A friend is someone who reaches for you hand but touches your heart." Thanx to everyone, I couldn't have done it w/out you! Good Luck class of 2000! It's been fun! Love always, Crystal Memories: JB's the original "can". M.Mac's house. Losing in Madden. Burring video games. Poor Wayne Gretzky! Emptying the sports box numerous times. Minuteman trip. New York trip and story. Fripar's. Orangina. 12% J.I.L.T.F, Art work (Bills vs. Redskins, Rockies, Passion on water, Game winner!.) Glynnwood Yards allnighter. QVC. Beehive. Coffeepot. Vargas! The Bonch. Waterhazard...tears, yes. LS hockey games and broadcasting. Burack, Wayland game. Going to all the sporting events, who else was going to yell at the refs? Icecats. Celtics "Goy" and Bruins, free: fries, shirts etc. Choad races. Skunkape. Sr. dress up...Nsync was better! My addiction/dedication to AOL, 4:30am is the record, Kim you'll always have a place in my heart :-). Quotes: Just throw it! Kenny, can I have your autograph? Drew, for the win...Valpo!!! you know it! Peepin a pretzel. There's a twanger on your back.. What's a twanger? Is that a rubber band? That hurts...that really hurts. Its all about self control! Thingamajig. Its extra credit for english. I'm going to "attack" her. Next stop...the wall. There is plenty of room on this train! Its a conspiracy! Thanks and good luck to all my friends, especially KM, ER, PG, LS, TL, RD, TV, KM and of course the fripar fellas: NC, ML, NM, MD, DM, KJ, KM, TC

Philana Gnatowski

Thanks to my teachers, family, and friends who made these last 4 years great. Special thanks to Sarah, Liz and Erin- you've been there for me through it all...thanks! I will never forget all the memories: LSFH99 was an amazing season, keep it up next year girls, gdluck bgent and mags! Let's go to poison for dinner-ST, ah sonia that says poisson, it means fish in french, Ny was great! disney ponchos, sarah was it even raining? mash! Christina Graceffa

"Remember that wherever you go, there you are." T.C. Moe, what can I say? You have helped me through some tough times and some pretty rough questions, you have always been there for me. Remember: UMass, ear piercings, driving around at 11:30 trying to find a phone card, Locobazooka, and going over the Merrimack River trying to find that hair pin turn. To my MoMo, it has been quite an adventure since seventh grade. Mr. Lipsky, those pancakes we burned, you better keep that warm fuzzy me made, and you can come over my house and steam wallpaper anytime. Angela, this lap has to be very long, and I can't wait until it's over. The sad part is there won't be any stupid movies to make or community napkins to share. But I promise that I will never make you lay down in my trunk again. To everyone else: we made it together. It seemed like the blink of an eye, and now, sadly, it's over. Good Luck 2000. Advice: "Try getting serious once in awhile- seriousness need not signal the end of enjoyment. At some point it may be necessary to grow up."

From "The Gang" to the boyz to the Salty Banquet Table girls, there is nothing I regret. English drawing, treadmill studying, Spindly, SKI TRIP-double black diamonds and jumping over the creek to my stomach, Cha-Chaing through friendlies, "borrowing" Cha-Cha, Viagra! Muscles! We're in Maine? Rotary competitions, vacuum cleaner, driving range, big ball bowling, Crystal Springs, shopping cart rides, Dodging mall security, Mustang! Hampton beach-burning, boogie boarding, tattoo searching, screaming "tell me why!"-bsb These are the moments-E.M Total Eclipse of the Heart, hardwood floor party, Sally, Straw wrappers, banquet table, EAT IT! Can I count that for you? Headbob-dmb, girls football, flying car, aiblz waiters, SALT, stealing salt shakers, I can't shimmy, all nighter, bananaphone in basement, Jo hooks it up-w/ whole bus! Hello my sh*t, Wallabees at Rainforest Cafe, sprite and rolling down hill at night, lost in nyc! I will now always laugh at the sight of a SKUNK! I know we will all stay in touch, and about that apt. in Boston, we'll kill eachother! We're finally seniors and it was definitely worth the wait. Good Luck 2000!

To laugh often and much
To win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children, to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends;
to appreciate beauty,
to find the best in others,
to leave the world a bit better...
to know even one life has breathed easier because you lived.

This is to have succeeded.

I cherish the friendships I've made at LS. To Erika- you are my good influence in every way. You are truly sweet, caring, and compassionate. I envy you for your unselfishness. Mags- You're my girl! I've always been able to count on you to make me laugh, and be crazy- you're always there to cheer me up and; you're just greeaaat. Laura- there aren't words to express how much I'll miss you next year. And Matt- I have breathed easier because of you. I love you guys. And remember...whatever happens, happens, good or bad. It makes us who we are.

I can't believe this journey is over. These past 4 years have been filled with stress, tears, laughter and smiles. Christina, Erin, and Heather you're my best friends in the whole world. I love you guys so much and I'll never ever forget all we've been through and all that you've taught me, you've made me who I am today. Kim, you've allowed me to discover my adventurous side, and you've taught me to live my life to the fullest. Crystal, we all know you like it salty! You're so full of life and your brilliant soul radiates wherever you go. Caroline, I love your faith and spirit. Sometimes your hugs are what got me through the day. Jody, your presence in my life has brought nothing but smiles, laughter, and joy. Reeves-never cut your negatives! Sarah oh the memories! Jeffs tree house, prom and so much more. ST, MM, LC, JK, BM and MG. I love you guys so much! Banquet table, late nights at Applebee's and the waiters!, flying cars, salt packets/shakers, salty fries, straws, my angel, pickle in a bag, mustangs! It's been a great four years! Thanks to everyone who has made it a memorable experience. Jess, my best friend, you have been there for me all the time. We'll always have our memories. Good Luck in college!! ALWAYS keep in touch! Thanks to all my friends. I'll always remember the good and bad times we shared together. Mrs. Callahan, I don't know what I would have done without you. You always encouraged me to stick with it. To my family, you are such a strong support in my life. My sisters, Shana and Candace. Good Luck Candace! My cousins, Marianne and Meagan. I couldn't ask for cooler cousins. You guys are the best!! My aunt and uncle. I love you guys so much. My two wonderful grandmothers. You have been through so much throughout the years, yet you have come out stronger. I admire you both so much. Lastly, to my Mom and Dad. I love you with all my heart. There aren't enough words to express how much you mean to me. You both have helped me through so much especially these past four years. To the CLASS OF 2000, Good Luck in the years to come!

Before we all go in our separate directions and each end up in different places, I need to say a few Thank You's to: Mom and Dad - for pushing me to accomplish whatever I desire; and for supporting me and allowing me to become what I am today. Martha - for making me smile when Shelly moved away; and for making me feel young again. Kim - for teaching me how to fight fair; and for putting up with me for 12 years. Shelly - for being there at 9:17; and for giving up what you wanted because I wanted it more. Debbie - for making me smile; and for never judging me or my decisions. Jody - for always being a leader; and for smiling through thick and thin. Craig - for being the first guy to make me feel beautiful; and for knowing my faults but loving me anyway. And James, Heather, Lisa, Meghan, Crystal, Christina, Justyna, Angela, Erin, Matt, Meagan, Caroline, Lea, Steph, and anyone else I may have forgotten by accident. You guys are the best. Thanks again to everyone for being such a big part of my life for the last 4 years.

Mike Lopez and I would like to use this space to say how much we appreciated the opportunity to work with a crew of funny, hardworking, and caring people- the LS maintenance staff. Thanks to Duke, Donny, Harry, Kevin, Michael, Billy, Bruce, Fred, Paul, Jim, and Richie. Students and faculty at Lincoln Sudbury do not realize how much time and effort they put into our school. Mike and I came in as clumsy [him] and lazy [me] 9th graders. Thanks to you we now feel like we do your jobs better than you can!!!!!! [at least the one wearing the Gatlinburg tank top each day!] You guys not only made us better workers, but you helped us become better people, and that is something we can never forget. To close, Mike apologizes for the time [well both times] when he spilled blue paint. You were there to help him out then, and you were there for us always. Thanks again. Your friends, Mike and Keith

How these four years have flown by! We have reached the end of one chapter of our lives and are preparing to begin another. Before we continue, each of us has people to thank and memories to reflect upon.

To my family: your undying love and support has never faltered or changed. It has motivated me to challenge myself and reach for my goals. Daniel, you I will especially miss. Our times together were some of the best I can remember.

To my friends: the wonder, joy, and hilarious laughter we experienced together is unforgettable. There are countless moments I wish I could record to reminisce upon in the future, but alas, this box is too small. Some of the more memorable highlights: Ars Magica, laser tag in the school, Sunday River, LS Volleyball #48, and late nights (and mornings) in DYAD.

To my colleagues: a fantastic experience it was growing up with you. The classes, activities, and trips we shared were truly enjoyable.

Now we part on our separate ways. Many of you I will never see again, but I will always remember you. Best of luck to the Class of 2000!

Caroline Peirce

Thank you for making these past three years awesome! We have had a blast and I will never forget all our great times. From studying on treadmills and drawing pictures in class, to dressing up like the Spice Girls to cha-chaing through Friendlys we have had many memorable times. First, to the Cheerleaders: We are a team because we are friends first. Go '98 DCL Champs! Cheerleading IS a sport, no matter what anyone says. Remember-Don't "coch" your wrists! To the Ski Trip Gang: CHA-CHA, things that make you go "Boing!", Muscles, "I want to but a vacuum cleaner", "We're in Maine?", Total eclipse of the Heart, Tell me why!!! Double black diamonds, flying over the creek. No trip will ever be the same. And finally, to my corrupters, you know who you are: Friday's at Applebee's, banquet tables, Busty, straws, Strawberry Daiquiris, Block four frees, salt, flying cars, Moooooooooooooo! Thanks to everyone, I will miss you all! Good luck class of 2000!

Warning: this is going to be sappy!
As we embark upon another intersection of life, to turn onto another road, I look back on the bumpy, windy path we just traveled on. I want to thank all those people that were always there through good and bad. There is just too many to name, so I am going to thank first of all, my close friends, you know who you are, yes you. Secondly I want to thank all the rest of my friends, not only the people I hang with on the weekends, or have long conversations with, but everyone who even gave a hint of a smile in the hallway, or even just said "hey". A friend can also be someone that I have befriended once or twice for unknown reasons, you know who you are. I want to thank you all for, four of the best years, you made all the bad days good, and all the F's seem like A's. I know that even if we become distant over the years, that we will remember our times together, and we will be just as close as we are now.

Liz Smith

"This is the time to remember because it will not last forever. And these are the days to hold on to cause we won't although we'll want to." -BJ
SW-Phlegm, its half way out, four fingers, XC buddies...not running-how many people in the hot tub, Spike, St. John KIM&the bathroom, Breezy, I got the window! PG-Boinktano, psycho dog, floating hands, no more movie quotes!, "LS", not-peeing buddy AB-Good luck in everything, just remember we'll always have our lemonade stand DT-You're my best friend, thanks for everything!! BD- its a moving truck! Always wipe your nose! ST-DMB...never stop dancing! NM- I enjoyed feeding you, thanks for always being there LB- Thanks for keeping me sane, Gdlk! LSFH 99'-It was unforgettable, good luck next year- BOOMBOOMBOOM!! NY 97'-Fettucine milk & face, Candyman, Maggie's FRIEND Greg, We miss you Collie! RK... tight white shorts, old man...split! Sarah and Phil, you're the best thanks for always being there and keeping me laughing. Barbies- 10, 5, dollar... how many people, shut up go to bed! Never stop laughing guys! To all my friends who made the past four years great, I'll miss you guys! Good Luck in everything you do!!!

Matthew Spinek

Well, it's been quite the experience. This road has definitely been a long one. Some of it's been pretty bumpy, but most of its been a smooth ride. If I could do it all over, I know I would take all the same turns I had before. Most importantly I couldn't have taken the trip alone, and I have all my friends to thank for, for helping me find the right roads to take. Daps2all my boys, Rippers&CrewUknow who UR. Thnx4 all the special memories U have given me! LS Soccer#9 capts(MS,KS,MG,BM) Overtime #1 North Andover. Huge rippers at Minehans. Acorn Park. NewYrs at BC's.. "Flyin monkeys" Sonia's house!(Mags)Memorable trips2Lake George (MG,KS). Ill rides N.P.107-rt.20. Party at Courtney's! (Bob)JK. Summer nights at LakeBoon SS&T&Belle.Nashawtuc=loads full of "fun" ... "Don't worry, I'm coo wit the aliens Ben". Senior Dress-up YMCA(MS,MG,KS, Bruiser<Manny, T.B.)& other memories that'll never be forgotten!! & To the gal I love, Mags...hon, I couldn't have done it w/out you. When spirits were down&hopes lost, you've been there to help find them again. IthankU4that. UR an Angel of Mine! Mags, U mean the world 2me&there will always be a love 4U in my heart. ILoveU Our love-11/25/98-forever. I wish U all the best of luck! GDLK 2000!

Smashing Pumpkins, Weezer, Bush, Matthew Good Band, Green Day, Pop music, alternative music, and Boy Bands ... Kate, Katie, Rachel, Ryan C., Ryan K., Emma,...Oliver, Snickers ... Mallrats, Cruel Intentions, Empire Records, American Pie...Buffy the Vampire Slayer, That 70's Show, SNL, E!, VH1, MTV, and the WB...Concerts, movies, Music - thanks to all those things for making me smile ... Drama, L-S, Students, family, "friends",- I won't forget the times you made me cry, but I'll move on...I think the thing I want people to remember is that life is not meant to be lived in the past, it is meant to be lived in the present, but if you look back and see something you don't like, remember it and change the outcome if it ever happens again, because, as we are all taught, history will repeat itself.

Sarah Walker

Always remember: Delaware...spike, ankle cracking, night swimming, winnie, Acadia, skiing, slacker runners, guy troubles, my kidney hurts...yesterday it was your heart, raincoats, Lincolnite, personal psychiatrist, can you repeat that again? BillyMadison, Birdy, prospect, subject, the famous e-mail, softball 345, aliens, 12...lunch time! Poison, Sunday River, I'm too cool for you in eng, don't ignore me, how many guys did you hook up with at camp? if you sleep with your bra on..., fix your hair, pumice, half your face sunburned, erin's house...knockout, b-ball camp, ...I was walking the dog, sporty spice, the Cape, MASH, laughing about nothing, baseball games, do not disturb, nap tube, Grist Mill, sleepy noises, no tickling...yes...lots of tickling, Courtney's house, how many people can we fit in one bed, wait...who's playing in the superbowl, can you sleep over or are you sick, just the three of us, NY trip, pushups in the middle of the night, bouncing, breezy, sun-dome, snack shack, two hour wait, evening magic, choose your color, 2 track mind, call me sometime, Phish, DMB, I can see myself in your pants, you're doing fine,your tongue is rough, barbies...1cent, 5cent, 10cent, dolla, deaf girl, jelly fish!...it's weeds and we're in a lake...

Colophon

DYAD 2000 was produced digitally. Each picture was either taken by a digital camera or scanned from prints or negatives and then digitally retouched. The pages were laid out and sent to the Jostens printing plant in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Our Jostens representative was John Neister, and our plant consultant was Jana Duncan-Poplar. To produce the yearbook, we used the following:

Hardware

Power Macintosh G4, 7 Power Macintosh G3s, Power Macintosh G3 Server, Power Macintosh 8600/300, various Apple, Optique, and Sony monitors, Apple LaserWriter 630 Pro printer ("Maggie"), Apple LaserWriter 8500 ("Clyde Featherstone"), Epson PhotoEX printer, Asanté 10/100bt cards, hubs, and switches, 1/2 mile category 5 network cable.

Software

Adobe Photoshop 5.0.2, Adobe PageMaker 6.5, ClarisWorks 4.0, Claris FileMaker Pro 4.0, UMAX Vistascan 2.4.3, Adaptec Toast 3.5.7, AppleShare IP Server 6.3, Dantz Retrospect 4.1.

Electronic Storage

2 APS 18 GB external drives, APS 9GB external drive, 2 APS 4GB external drives, APS 2GB Jaz drive, APS 4x CD-ROM burner, APS 40GB tape backup device, approximately 20 18GB DV tapes, approximately 100 CDR discs.

Imaging

Kodak DC-315 Professional Series Digital Camera, Kodak DC-260 Digital Camera, Sony HandyCam Digital Video Camera, Canon Optura DVC, Sony DHR-1000 DV deck, various Flash ROM cards ranging from 4MB to 64 MB, 340 MB spinning media PCMCIA card, various point-and-shoot and disposable cameras, UMAX Astra 1200S and 1220U flatbed scanners, Nikon LS-1000 film scanner.

About Production

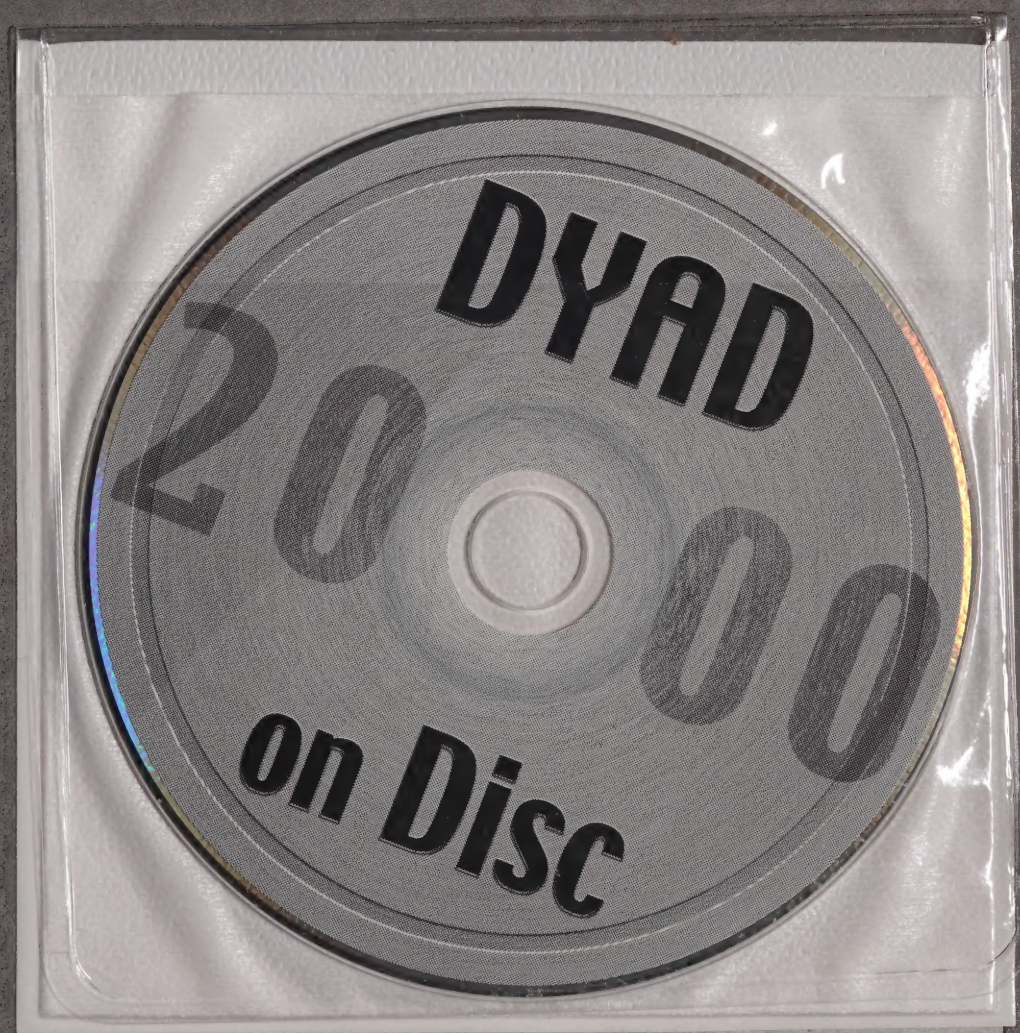

The 127 pages of color are printed on 90 lb. lustre paper and the remaining 353 black and white pages are printed on 80 lb. gloss paper. The front and back endsheets are printed on 100 lb. paper. The cover contains embossed foil stamped text, an overtone rub, a four color custom tip-on, and a lithograph overgrain. It was co-designed by Jostens artist Rick Brooks. Most books are customized with foil name stamping. The distance between the cover boards is 2 1/16 inches.

Things That Got In The Way Of Production
